PB residents send clear message: No cityhood

By DAVID LELAND

PEBBLE BEACH voters trounced Measure M this week, an advisory vote that sent a clear message to PBCSD directors: the status quo is OK with them.

'I think it's a vote indicating that the people of Pebble Beach are satisfied with the type of government they have. They just don't want to be a city; they want to be left just the way they are.'

— Sam Karas

A total of 1,755 (65 percent) of the voters said "No" to Measure M, while 933 (35 percent) supported incorporation, according to the Monterey County Elections Office.

Seventy-two percent of Pebble Beach voters took part in the Nov. 6 election.

"We ran the campaign as well as we could and we lost," said Ed Keith, president of the Committee to Incorporate Pebble Beach. "I'm disappointed in my fellow citizens in Pebble Beach. I think they didn't act in their best interests, but that's history."

Officially, nothing will happen until the PBCSD board of directors meets at 9:30 a.m. Monday, Nov. 19, to discuss the issue, according to David Sprenger, PBCSD president.

"The 19th will decide what we'll do in light of the vote," said Sprenger, adding that the district had currently spent $95,000 on incorporation effort.

PBCSD directors were poised to move forward, spending an additional $95,000 for an environmental impact report before it was decided to put the measure to an advisory vote.

"This (Measure M) is a ringing mandate to the district that the residents want incorporation stopped now," said John Torney, Committee Against Incorporation chairman.

The idea of incorporation often became cloudy during the weeks prior to the election, with both sides claiming that their way was the only method to keep the forest from rampant overdevelopment.

Those supporting incorporation argued that the county often neglected to act in the forest's best interests. Anti-incorporation members claimed that land-use regulations would be relaxed if Pebble Beach became a city.

Legal experts from both sides argued whether the toll gates limiting access to the forest would be removed if incorporation occurred. The argument was never resolved.

TO NO one's surprise, county officials reacted positively to the defeat of Measure M — cityhood would have kept about $4 million in property taxes collected each year in the forest.

"I think it's a vote indicating that the people of Pebble Beach are satisfied with the type of government they have," said 4th District Supervisor Sam Karas, who represents one half of Del Monte Forest with 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman. "They just don't want to be a city; they want to be left just the way they are."

Strasser Kauffman agreed.

"We (supervisors) will have to continue to work very hard to make sure the Pebble Beach quality of life is maintained and their precious resources protected," she said.

Strasser Kauffman lauded the lively incorporation debate that took place over the past year.

"The democratic process is alive and well in the Del Monte Forest," she said. "It's encouraging to me to see the type of discussions that have taken place."

She added that the dialogue "activated" a lot of residents into community awareness.

"It is my hope that we can call on these people in the future," said Strasser Kauffman, referring to critical issues that may come before the board.

Nevertheless, capital improvement problems in the forest, which, in part, sparked the idea for incorporation, still loom before the PBCSD.

Pebble Beach still must update its antiquated water system for fire protection, with little funding available for the project.

"The district will have to figure out how to resolve the problems with the tools the people have given us to use, which may not be totally adequate," said Dick Andrews, PBCSD general manager.

'We ran the campaign as well as we could and we lost. I'm disappointed in my fellow citizens in Pebble Beach. I think they didn't act in their best interests, but that's history.'

— Ed Keith

A preliminary engineer's report indicated that it could cost between $7 million and $10 million to improve the water system. That number has now risen to $13 million, according to Andrews.

Andrews said that the district will likely "combine partners" in solving the problem. In other words a joint effort between forest residents, California-American Water Co., Monterey County and developers may be needed to raise funds for the work.

Torney was undaunted by the possibility of creative solutions to the area's problems.

"They (PBCSD) have to do their political responsibility and that is to promote fire protection," he said. "I'm sure the community services district knows exactly how to do it."

Eastwood rezoning unanimously denied by city council

By FRANK GEORGE

THE CARMEL City Council unanimously upheld a planning commission denial of a rezoning plan for Clint Eastwood's new building on San Carlos Street.

Saying he doesn't know how he will proceed with plans for the building now, Eastwood, who attended the Nov. 6 meeting, seemed only slightly disturbed by the decision.

"I was surprised at the way it just kind of floundered," Eastwood said. "I don't think the council was in the mood for it (a rezoning). In anticipation, I thought someone like (Councilman) Jim Wright would go for it."

"There was no other appropriate choice under the current zoning," said Councilwoman Barbara Brooks, when asked about the decision.

Prior to the vote, Mayor Jean Grace tried to promote a motion that would deny the rezoning but allow the actor-director to mix the business uses on the property. However City Atty. Don Freeman said the only issue the council could vote on was the rezoning itself. He said the council could either uphold the Oct. 17 planning commission decision or rescind it.

Eastwood and his representative, Carmel developer Alan Williams, will have another chance to promote the plan to mix businesses at the council's Nov. 8 meeting. A discussion of rezoning issues is on the agenda at the 4 p.m. meeting in the City Council Chambers.

"On Thursday (Nov. 8), we will discuss whether or not we want to look at the existing zones and the allowed uses," Brooks said.

Heavyweight ribbon-cutting

Gary LeFevre of Diversified Health Club Services, which donated equipment and computer software; Dr. Tom Deters, editor and publisher of Muscle & Fitness magazine; Eastwood; Schwarzenegger; and Mike Hays of Welder Gym Franchises. With the urging of Eastwood, several companies, including LA Gear and Apple Computers, donated equipment and supplies for the weight room and youth center. For more on the event turn to page 16. (Mac McDonald photo.)

A little clarification

Dear Editor:

Thank you for your coverage of our firm in the Nov. 1 issue. While the article was very complimentary, there were several inaccuracies and/or nuances in the text which could be misconstrued by other design professionals, particularly where they were in quotes attributed to me directly.

1. The firm name is CMS Collaborative rather than CMS Collective.

2. The fountain shot should be credited to Thomas S. Mallonee.

3. "I set out to do what the landscape architect can't do," would be more accurately phrased "Our work is complementary to that of the architect or the landscape architect."

4. "He adds that he was the only fountain consultant in the United States during the first 15 years of work" should be followed by "consistently engaged in the design of large-scale urban fountains."

5. "We're considered the best" should be followed by "in our particular field of endeavor (i.e. large scale urban fountains for architectural clients)."

6. The Metropolitan Sanitary District Centennial Fountain shoots a 300-foot stream across the Chicago River.

I want to make it clear that I don't feel I was necessarily misquoted, only the usual concern with incomplete and/or out of context quotes that could be misconstrued by professionals in closely related fields. I feel that it might be wise, if possible, to give the subject of similar "feature" articles (with no pressing deadline), an opportunity to review the proposed text. This would eliminate potentially embarrassing items such as those listed above, as well as other minor inaccuracies.

Again, I appreciate the article both personally and professionally. I hope you will be kind enough to publish what I'm sure seems a somewhat "nit-picky" list of clarifications that I can send on to my equally "nit-picky" colleagues and competitors who may have read the article.

Semantic juggling

Dear Editor:

In a sly effort to placate the parched public's indignation regarding the statistical juggling act performed by the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District board, Lawson Little strained himself to invent an historical truism.

To justify the board's convoluted awarding of "roughly 60 acre feet more water per year" to the Monterey Bay Golf Course Association (Carmel Pine Cone, Oct. 10), Little blandly stated, "Like the American Indians, the golf courses were here before most of us."

Evidently Mr. Little and his like are unaware of another arrogant statement which was almost a standard slogan of that era, "The only good Indian is a dead Indian."

BATES

"I hear he also bought Nicklaus. Think he could buy a rainmaker?"

If one does a bit of semantic juggling, one might develop another slogan which would equate dead Indians with golf courses. Have a care, Mr. Little!

The water board meetings are not noted for light exchanges, but painful throwaway lines like that of Mr. Little are even less entertaining.

Pending tragedy

Dear Editor:

It is amazing the number of speeding drivers on Ocean who ignore pedestrians in marked safety zones.

Certainly a number are tourists but also quite a few are residents who should know better. Imagine the trauma of smashing into a family walking with small children who cannot jump fast enough to escape certain death or disablement.

Enforcement in this critical traffic area should have a logical priority over the ticketing of parked vehicles — which cannot kill and maim.

Why wait for pending tragedy?

Beautiful football field

Dear Editor:

What a wonderful column by Jennifer Dyer! Of course I'm referring to her descriptions in Coming of Age of Bardason Field as "one of the most scenic backdrops for football in California."

Looking back on my days at Carmel High, I now understand why we didn't win more games than we did. Perhaps we were stunned by the view rather than our opponents.

Just a footnote to Ms. Dyer's article. In place of all the development she writes about (South Carmel Hills, Carmel Knolls, etc.) there was an even worse specter in our days — the thought of punting the cross-country course where homes now sit.

I have many fond memories, but only one irritation. Why did someone ever erect that ugly scorekeeper's tower? Please don't tell me it was a class gift. Even so, Ms. Dyer has reaffirmed what my family has heard me say many times as we drive past Carmel High, "there is the most beautiful football field in the world."

Awash in oil

Dear Editor:

We have had more than adequate time since the last oil crisis to develop a national energy policy that would free us from dependence on Mideast oil and the tyrants and cartel that control it.

Instead of developing a balanced policy we capped our wells and bought "cheap" oil from the Mideast. How much will that "cheap" oil cost us now?

The world is awash in oil. Over the past several years we could and should have been developing alternate suppliers in Mexico, Venezuela and a host of other countries in South America and around the world. Such a policy in conjunction with a tariff policy that would ensure our own domestic production while helping our embattled treasury would have promoted a stable oil supply.

It would be well to note also that nuclear power provides over 70 percent of the power needs of France while our own lawsuit-crippled nuclear industry provides only about 5 percent of ours.

Our show of force in the Mideast was well executed. That done, diplomacy should now be the order of the day. It would be less expensive than war and more effective in assuring the safety of the hostages. If Saddam Hussein would like to keep his share of the American oil market as well as other western markets it should be to his best interest to reach an accommodation with the United States.

Carmel networking

Dear Editor:

I am a new resident of Carmel-by-the-Sea having lived here over one year, relocating from Portland, Ore.

I wish to thank my old and new friends, acquaintances and persons previously unknown to me who have been so helpful, gave me great advice, answered my questions and assisted me in solving various problems, both large and small.

The networking here in Carmel may be taken for granted by some, but for me it is a wonderful experience. Carmelites are helpful, courteous, understanding and help to make Carmel the wonderful community it is and will continue to be.

CHS gears up for 50th anniversary celebration

By DAVID LELAND

WHEN CLASSES began at newly constructed Carmel High School in September of 1940, the handful of incoming students took a deep whiff of the sweet-smelling Monterey pines of the area they called home.

"It was such a relief not to have to go over the hill and smell those sardines," remembers Toland (Toly) Doud, one of the school's original students.

Doud, a retired dentist and Carmel property owner, was referring to noxious odors that spewed forth from then-prosperous Cannery Row sardine processing plants.

Before the opening of the high school, the majority of local students attended classes at Monterey High School — they haven't forgotten the longstanding football rivalry that sprung up between the two schools during the 1940s.

"I just thought it was good to get away from Monterey," says Jim Kelsey, battalion chief for more than 40 years with the Carmel Fire Department. "(Plus) there were all new teachers (in Carmel) and we broke them in real good."

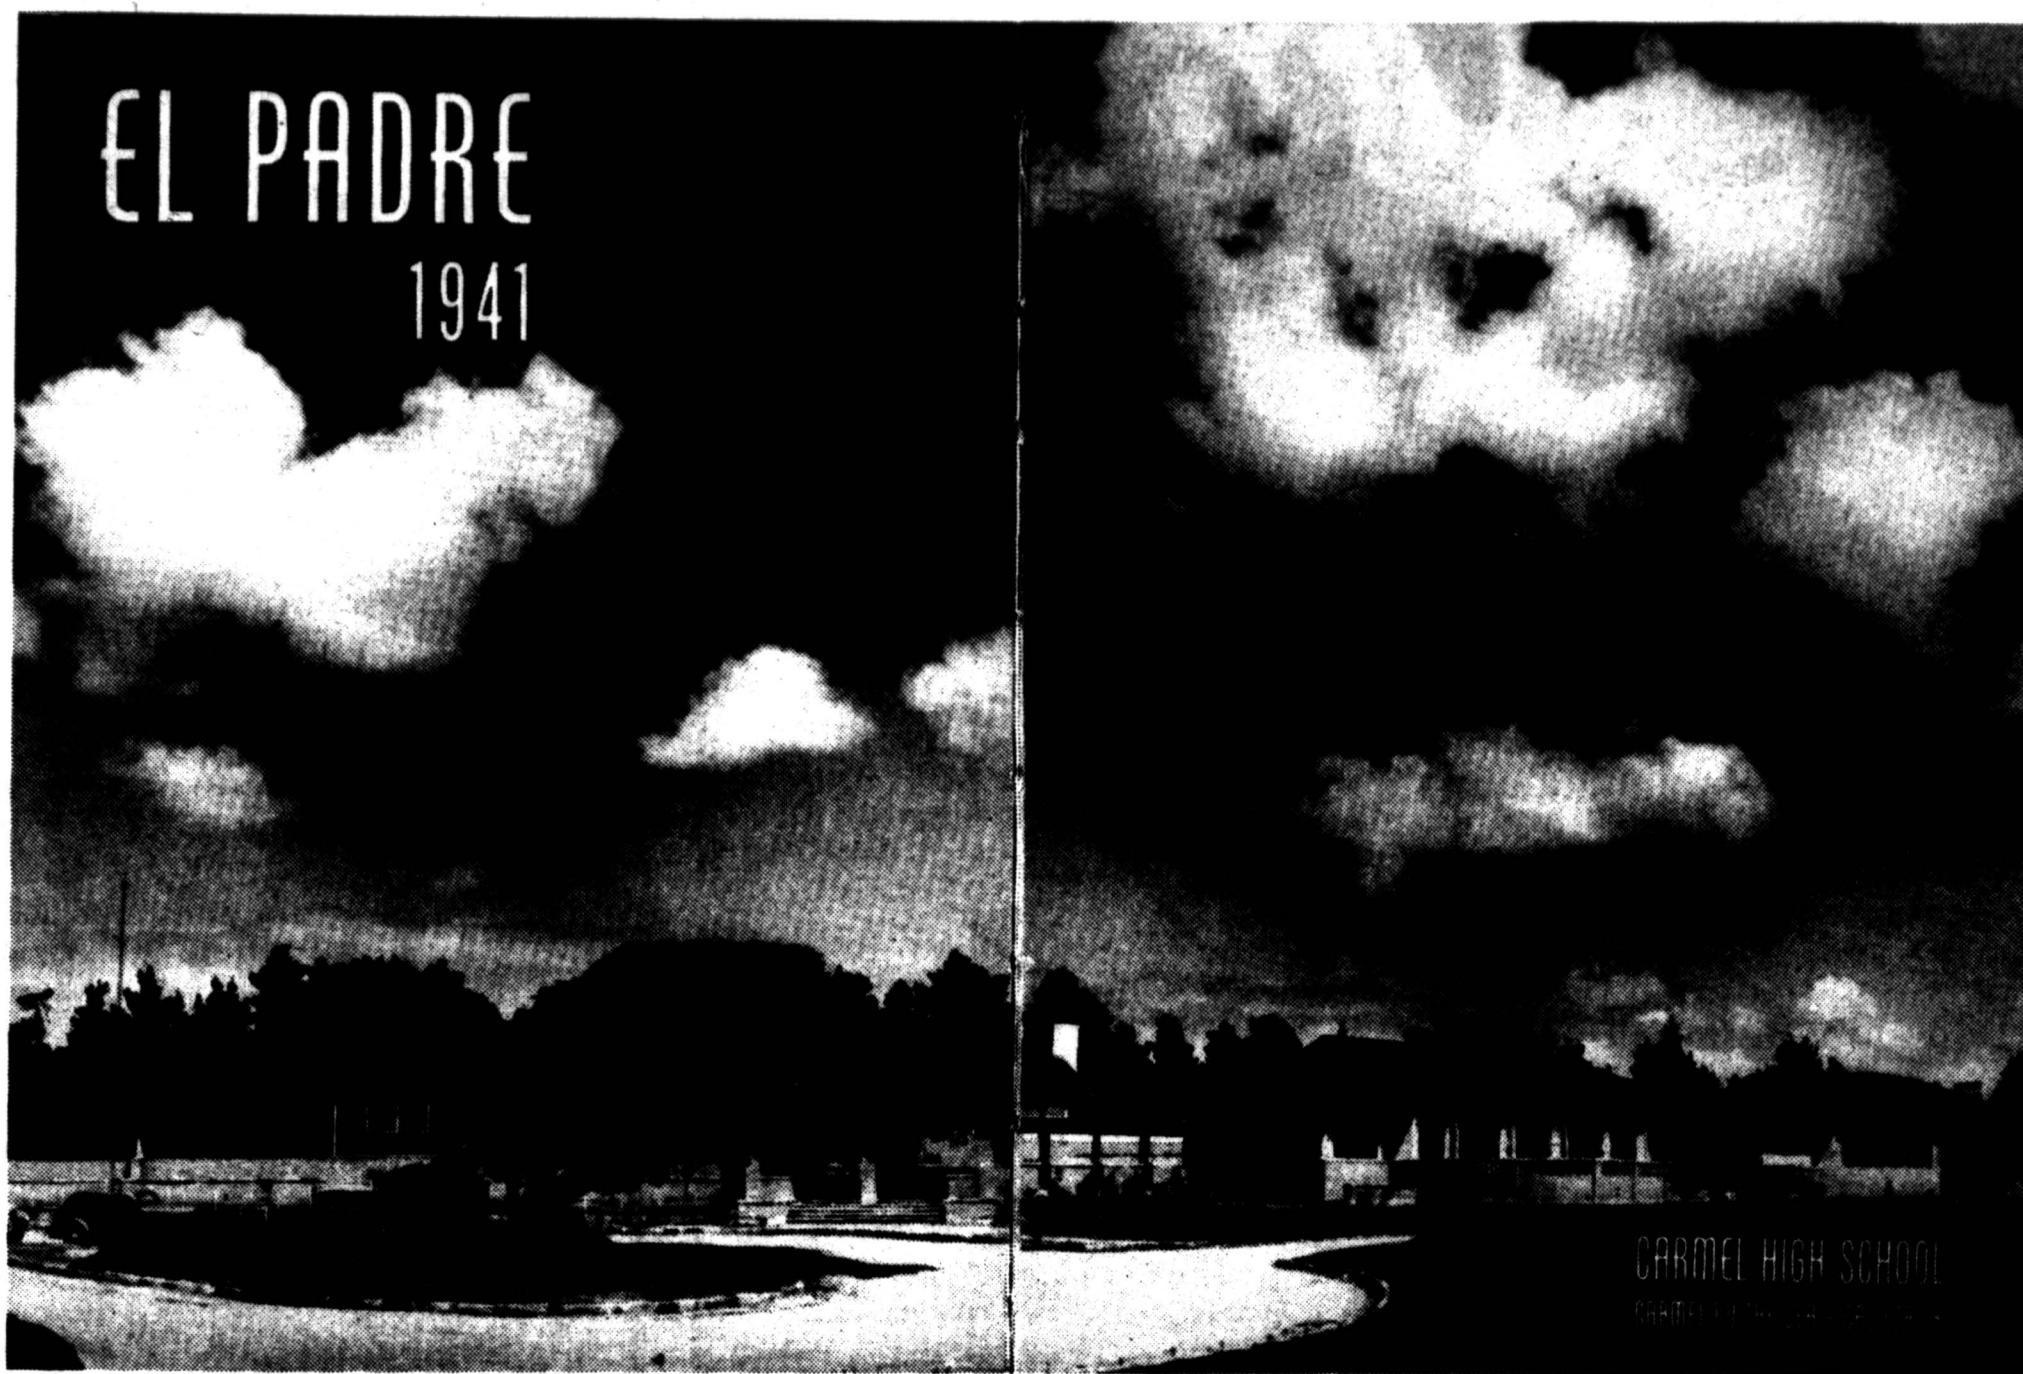

Well, the sardines have all but disappeared from the Monterey Bay and Carmel High has stretched out its campus considerably during the past half century, but the feeling of camaraderie known to alumni from the high school still runs deep.

"There's a bunch of us that meet every Saturday and Sunday for coffee," says a mischievous Kelsey. "We work everybody over."

For those too busy to take part in Kelsey and company's social club, however, next weekend will mark a time when old acquaintances can be rekindled.

This year's homecoming will begin at 10 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 10, with a parade down Ocean Avenue with floats, former homecoming queens and various VIPs.

Following those festivities, at 2 p.m. on Bardarson Field, the Padre football team takes on the Breakers of Pacific Grove for the coveted "Shoe," an annual battle for bragging rights. A

CARMEL HIGH School, seen here in the 1941 El Padre yearbook, has grown in size and prestige during the past 50 years. A reception will follow immediately after the game in the gym.

School officials are encouraging returning students to wear letterman jackets and the like to the football game and dance, which takes place at 8 p.m. after the game.

gala homecoming day is planned for Nov. 10, when students from past and present gather to support the Padres as they play

Doud, who played guard on the team, says when the Padres first began playing on Carmel's upper football field it was made of a gravel-like substance — call it a home-field advantage.

"The only time we played on grass was when we went someplace else," he says. "But we played better at home because no one (opponent) was used to it."

There was no gym at the school when it opened, so players showered in a small room next to the shop class.

Kelsey bypassed the gridiron, demonstrating his athletic prowess on the tennis courts where he was rated No. 2 at the school.

KEEP IN mind that Carmel High's architectural style was on the cutting edge of design before World War II.

"It was the first school I ever went to that looked like a hotel," says Ret. Army Col. Jack Matteson, who also played guard on the football team. "The outside halls so impressed me; I had never seen a school where everything was open."

Indeed, during that period of design, the majority of schools were multi-story affairs.

The first order of business at the new school was not classes, however, it concerned an image.

After considerable debate, students selected the colors cardinal and gray, calling themselves the Padres.

"Everybody kind of threw in names — no one person did it all," remembers Doud, who added the school almost called itself the Wolves, rather than the Padres.

There is, of course, much more to the school than sports. With that in mind, the high school will offer an additional alumni event next spring.

Still in the planning stages, the gala party will celebrate 50 years of educational excellence at the school.

Those interested in contributing to the party or simply needing more information can call either Pat Beebe or Karen Freitag Marasco at 624-1821.

Water board adopts supply that will stop new hook-ups

By FRANK GEORGE

MUCH TO the chagrin of the local construction industry, the Monterey Peninsula water board adopted an annual water supply that essentially stops new water hook-ups in the district.

The Monterey Peninsula Water Management District board adopted a 16,744-acre foot annual water supply in a 4-2 vote Nov. 5, with directors Morris Fisher and Jim Hughes dissenting. In doing so the board approved the most restrictive of five allocation options, called Water Supply Option 5.

This means, after Jan. 1 1991, Cal-Am Water Co. can sell only 15,572 acre feet of water per year — leaving no room for new hook-ups.

At the meeting, builders lobbied for the adoption of a larger allocation.

The amount of water that will be made available to each city in the district, however, has not yet been determined.

The board also discussed an ordinance that would place a moratorium on new water hook-ups until wells in Seaside and Del Rey Oaks start pumping. The wells, expected to provide an additional 1,200 acre feet of water per year, are scheduled to be utilized next spring.

Director Paul Davis stepped down from the proceedings, saying, as an architect, his connection to the building industry might create a conflict of interest.

The new water package includes mitigation programs for the Carmel River vegetation and fish habitat. These will cost the district $335,900 per year with capital costs of $442,700.

The programs will create a 3-percent rate increase on district Cal-Am bills. The hike will go into effect sometime next year.

Voting in the majority, director and 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman said a higher allocation would require severe rationing, even during non-drought years. She said continued over-pumping of the Carmel River aquifer could damage it and contaminate drinking water.

In voting with the minority, Fisher said the ordinance is going to "cut the throat of the construction industry." He said the district should not operate on a "first-come, first-served basis," apparently referring to resident groups who favored the smaller allocation and the moratorium.

Close to 40 people from local governments, resident groups and building trades addressed the board in a crowded Steinbeck Forum at the Monterey Conference Center.

Industry representatives endorsed a 17,500 acre-foot supply option — the fourth option — and opposed the moratorium. Many agreed with Fisher's prediction that the smaller allocation and a suspension on new hook-ups would put them out of business.

"The district continues to use its authority to enact policy that divides the community against itself," said Nancy Isakson, co-chairperson of Governmental Affairs for the Builders Exchange of the Monterey Peninsula, in a prepared statement. "The water-rationed public blames the building industry and the golf courses because a vocal segment of the board and community have used this argument to divide the community and clear the way for their own social legislation."

Isakson said that if the district continues to believe that it is still acting in the best interests of the community, "water users and water-dependent businesses will continue to be led like lambs to slaughter."

She went on to say that her industry believes that the district has several options at its disposal that also meets the needs of the environment, but added:

"As long as the district actions result in a political division and polarization of the community against itself, we will not have a long-term solution to our water problems," she said.

Jack Angel, manager of Granite Construction Co.'s Seaside branch, said his industry represents approximately one-third of the peninsula economy, while new construction hook-ups account for only 1 percent of the annual water use.

But Pacific Grove City Councilwoman Flo Schaefer reminded the board the 1 percent figure is cumulative, explaining that the builders have added a 14 percent burden to the water supply over the last 14 years.

Brian Roseth, representing the city of Carmel, said the village "reluctantly" supports the 17,500 acre foot Water Supply Option 4. He said

Steve Dallas, a teenager from Carmel Valley, reminded the directors that option four, rather than option five, had the crowd's "overwhelming support." He was hoping the board would deny the moratorium, which he had said would "limit my future" on the peninsula.

On the other hand, Lindsay Hanna, who sits on the Carmel Planning Commission, urged the water board to adopt option five and approve the hook-up suspension. He said he is afraid there will not be enough water for the existing tourist industry if the board chooses to do otherwise.

In response to charges that option five had not been adequately circulated to the public as part of the Environmental Impact Report (EIR) process, water district attorney David Laredo said the allocation has been three years in the making. "When does the process end?" he asked. Henrietta Stern, of the district staff, said the smaller option five was a response to public comments that were made when the EIR was circulated in March 1989.

Stern said there will be a formal hearing and a first reading of the moratorium ordinance at the Nov. 26 board meeting. The meeting starts at 7 p.m. and it will be held at Monterey City Council Chambers on Pacific Street in Monterey.

Library's reference department offers a welcoming environment

By RODNEY GUILFOIL

IF YOU visit the reference department at Carmel's Harrison Memorial Library, you'll be surprised at what you'll find.

HARRISON MEMORIAL LIBRARY

Rather than a library so silent you can hear a "Shhhh!" from a stern librarian, you'll find a comfortable welcoming environment where the emphasis, surprisingly, is on friendly service.

Take it from Pamela Jungerberg, the department director, who says her goal "is to respond to the information needs of the community as accurately and completely as possible."

And the community's information needs are many and varied. The department's patrons come from all walks of life.

"We field 1,200 to 1,500 questions per month," Pamela says.

"We're asked to look up the correct spelling of a word...a Congressional representative's address...find the whereabouts of sheet music to an old popular song...or identify an organization that exists specifically for model railroad enthusiasts."

She adds that medical and drug information, consumer evaluations, and legal guides are other examples of common requests.

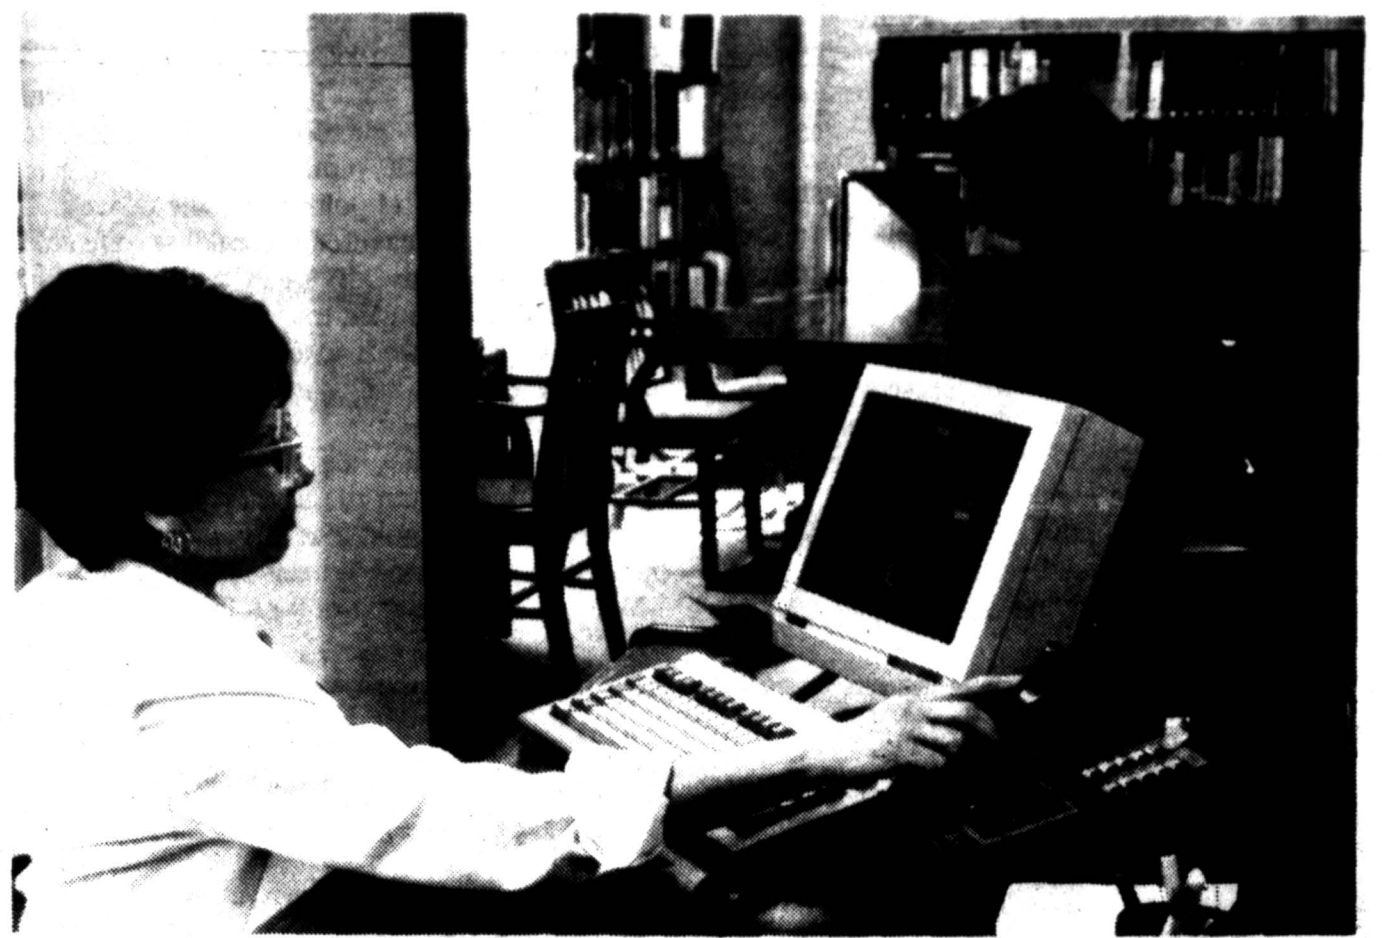

Pamela has several trained staff members that help her as reference librarians. One of them is Marna Anderson, who graduated from the library school in 1973, and who works not only for Harrison but also for the library at Monterey Peninsula College.

Suppose a patron comes in with a question. How does Marna help him or her?

"First, I take the patron to a shelf, remove a book, and say, 'Look it up, here's the answer.'"

"If that doesn't work, then I go to LePac - that's a computer containing a catalog of books in Monterey Peninsula libraries and nearby areas. If the answer isn't there, I consult various books, one of them called Books in Print. There's also a microfiche file, 'Catalyst,' listing books in most California libraries.

If these efforts prove unavailing, Marna calls on a research center called MOBAC, short for Monterey Bay Area Cooperative Library System.

CAMDEN HUBBARD, a freshman at Robert Louis Stevenson School from Carmel, consults with librarian Halina Szczeslika for

The center has a computer that can search in more detail, not only throughout California but in many parts of the United States.

Who are these reference department patrons?

"For one thing," Pamela says, "there is a high percentage of writers in the community. They may ask us to track down the printed folklore upon which the legendary Zorro is based, specifics of plane interiors, or the customs and culture of 19th century Poland."

And Marna says patrons also include artists, persons interested in genealogy, business people needing statistics, and most importantly, persons engaged in scholarly pursuits for their own sake.

"This community has any number of persons who are following a trail of knowledge for no other reason than to broaden their cultural horizons."

Does she get interested in her patrons' requests?

"All the time," Marna replies. "Often I become more interested than the patron, and will request further information about a subject."

Marna is appreciative of her patrons' response to her efforts. She says they're patient and grateful for what she and her fellow reference librarians do for them. And finally, she concludes:

"I love my work. It is the most satisfying thing I have ever done."

Pamela Jungerberg concurs, and extends an invitation to visit the reference department.

"Who knows...you might discover a reference source that's perfect for the project you're working on...realize that the phone book map, or college catalog you need is in your local library...or that the reference staff is able to answer that question that's been rattling around the back of your mind."

"Whatever you find, you're guaranteed friendly and competent assistance."

Donors may select some titles

SINCE THE Carmel Public Library Foundation and Harrison Memorial Library Trustees joined forces to send a mail request for funds to 1,300 library patrons last week, more than $8,000 has been received - some of it with requests for specific titles.

Patrons have asked if there is a specific list of titles they might select from, for their donations to go towards purchasing. The answer is "yes" and "no." Yes, there is a list of periodicals: newspapers and magazines that the library has had to drop as prices of subscriptions have increased.

However, in order to assume that the library can continue to keep the subscriptions on the shelf for a least a year at a time, and in order to retain the right of the library staff and board to determine priorities, the donors may select only from broad categories. In order to be acknowledged as underwriting a year's subscription to a magazine or reference work, a donor would need to give in the $250, $500 and over category. Some reference works, such as Standard and Poor's are quite costly. The library would like to carry them again, but would need an endowment gift to assure continuous ability to purchase these valuable works. Contributors wishing to contribute towards a specific periodical should contact library Director Margaret Pelikan.

"I understand the donor's desire to select, but it would be so much easier for us if they would trust our Selection Policy. Individual titles are chosen by library staff using 22 different library aids and consider 13 criteria, including literary merit, reputation, availability, cost and, very important to us, use patterns by patrons. With all this taken into consideration, and the fact that only experienced librarians are making the selections, we hope the public will feel confident in making unrestricted gifts to the Book Program."

The main categories from which donors may select to direct their gifts are: Reference, Fiction, Mystery Books, Audio Visual Materials, Large Print Books, Serials (Magazines), Local History Materials, Biographies, Children's Books and Materials.

"Remember," reminds Maria Gitin, Carmel Public Library Foundation executive director, "Our goal is to fully fund Harrison Library's book and materials budget, not to fill up certain sections and deprive others of new materials. We are pleased to report that most contributors are giving unrestricted gifts."

"Our board, HML trustees and library director work together within our policies and guidelines to determine whether unrestricted gifts should be used for new books now, invested in the endowment fund for future purchases, or used for the foundation's start-up and operating expenses. Of course, restricted gifts are used as the donor wishes, unless their request violates policy. Then we speak with them to see how we can work together to meet everyone's needs."

The largest gifts sought by the Library Foundation, $1 million to name Park Branch; $500,000 to name Children's Library; $250,000 to name Local History, and other naming opportunities under discussion, will only be accepted if they are unrestricted.

"One of the problems organizations run into is accepting large restricted gifts," says Gitin, an experienced development consultant. "Always considered before any other criteria must be the purpose of the library: 'To select, organize, preserve and make freely available to the people of the community print and non-print materials, within the limitations of space and budget, which will aid them in the pursuit of education, information, research, recreation and culture' and the purpose of CPLF: 'To raise, invest and grant funds to Harrison Memorial Library to support its operating budget.' If we keep our Mission Statements clearly in front of us, and utilize the combined wisdom and talent of our two fine boards, I think we can demonstrate to the public that their funds will be well spent."

Book Program brochures may be picked up at both branches of the library. Additional information is available by calling the foundation office, 624-2811.

BOOK PROGRAM - ANNUAL FUND

Contributions to the Book Program will be spent within the next year on the purchase of books and equipment for the library.

ENDOWMENT FUND

For those who wish to make a larger gift, perhaps to honor family members or a cherished individual, there are meaningful opportunities to name collections, rooms, the Local History department and the library's Park Branch through the fund. Gifts to the endowment will be invested and interest only spent.

FOUNDATION OPERATING FUND

CPLF is a professionally staffed organization housed in Park Branch. First-year expenses include office equipment and public relations materials. Unrestricted contributions to cover these costs are sought.

For further information on gifts to Harrison Memorial Library, Maria Gitin may be contacted at the CPLF office at Park Branch. Telephone 624-2811.

Meals on Wheels needs volunteers

DRIVERS AND other volunteers are needed to deliver 200 meals daily to shut-ins and the handicapped on the peninsula for Meals on Wheels.

According to Chuck Poland, a Carmel volunteer, 200 homes are served with three meals five days a week from Carmel Valley to Marina, but 22 volunteer drivers are needed daily to deliver those meals.

"We were seven drivers short the other day," said Poland, who has been pressed into service so often that he's driving almost daily now. "It means a lot to these people. You thank your lucky stars when you leave."

Poland said there are 22 routes, three of them in the Carmel area. One route usually takes from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. (including driving to and from the pick-up point in Pacific Grove).

Each shut-in is delivered a breakfast, one cold meal (usually sandwich, salad and juice), and one hot meal. He added that volunteers are also needed to make sandwiches and salads at the Meals On Wheels facility at 700 Jewell Ave. in Pacific Grove.

Almost all of the help is from volunteers, Poland said, so often the agency ends up short-handed. If you would like to volunteer to help out, contact Meals on Wheels at 375-4454.

Meals on Wheels is a non-profit organization.

Halloween prowler

TECHNICALLY NO longer Halloween, but still carrying the eerie remnants of the holiday, a woman was asleep in her living room at 1:30 a.m. Nov. 1 when she awoke to see a man wearing a ski mask and dressed all in black standing above her.

The intruder ran off when the woman asked him what he was doing in her home.

Police are uncertain how the man entered the premises, however, it appears the front door may have been unlocked. The woman was not harmed and nothing was stolen.

Car robbery

A TOURIST from Palo Alto was apparently the victim of a robbery on his trip to Carmel.

According to the visitor, the lock on the trunk of his Mercedes was picked on Thursday, Nov. 1 and $5,000 worth of merchandise was stolen.

Police were first informed of the robbery when the victim contacted them by phone four days after the fact on Monday, Nov. 5 from his home on the San Francisco peninsula.

The theft occurred at Ocean and Del Mar between 7:30 and 9 p.m. Police were unable to examine the car and have no suspects.

Pedestrian footpaths making way through Carmel Valley Village

By SUSAN BECK

GLEN GURRIES wants a "user friendly" village to enhance a stronger economy as well as provide enjoyment and safety for the residents.

Gurries is the chairman for the Carmel Valley Village Pathways Committee. His top priority in the village core is Rippling River, a special housing area for the disabled. Providing a path that will accommodate persons in wheelchairs so that they can get from their homes at the east end of town to the library and community center at the west end is the committee's current focus.

Now most of the disabled don't want to risk going to town because of all the potholes and unsafe crosswalks, said Gurries. A subtle path system would make a visit to the village easy and enjoyable. Also, it would help tourism. Tourists could park at one end of town and leisurely walk and shop the length of the village.

The Carmel Valley Improvement Committee set up the Pathways Committee to specifically concentrate on paths that would connect the core of the village to the surrounding residential areas. The Improvement Committee started about 13 years ago with the main objectives being paths and street lighting, said Gurries.

The Improvement Committee was responsible for undergrounding utilities about five years ago. They also have replaced almost all of the unattractive overhead lights with rustic lamp poles with lanterns, said Gurries.

The pathways project began in 1987 and 40 percent of the paths through the village have been completed. The cost of the project is difficult to determine because of the obstacles that occur, such as adhering to special requirements of the Monterey County Public Works Department or Pacific Bell and Pacific Gas & Electric. Also, there are certain property owner requirements that come up when a path is designed that encroaches on personal property, said Gurries.

At the moment the committee is broke. However, they are in the process of applying for money from the Transient Occupancy Tax obtained from hotels in Carmel Valley.

The Carmel Valley Village is unincorporated, so the taxes go to the county. The Monterey County Overall Economic Development Commission has set aside a portion of the tax money in the sum of $127,500 for loans to various projects. In 1987 the pathways project received $10,000 and the goal for 1990 is $30,000, said Gurries. An additional $30,000 has been received from private donations. "Without the initial seed money from the county our project would not be possible," said Gurries.

"We could use $100,000, but whatever we get will be stretched out to make the project work. It takes just as much energy to spend it as it does to raise it," said Gurries, referring to the coordination part of the project.

The committee does not want to push or force the pathways on property owners. "We want them to be completely happy and comfortable. So far, they have been." He said that the paths are not sidewalks, but are "tucked-away landscaped walkways."

In addition to any donations, the committee welcomes volunteers. Help with designing, transplanting existing shrubs and plants, clearing paths, and landscaping is needed.

In January there will be a "Village Affair" fund-raiser with raffles and prizes. Donations such as vacation trips, antiques, and specialty items are also welcome from local businesses and residents. The proceeds from last year's event was about $16,000, which was the bulk of the committee's financing.

"The community's willingness to raise money for the paths is how we are able to keep the project going," said Gurries.

The "user-friendly" approach to the pathways project is for the economy of the village, the enjoyment of its residents, and safety for the disabled and the community's children. Gurries said that the committee does not want to change the character of the village.

For information about donations and volunteering write Village Affair, P. O. Box 2001, Carmel Valley, CA 93924.

WEIGHING THE EFFECTS OF THE LATEST BUDGET ACCORD

The budget agreement to cut $500 billion from projected deficits over the next five years finally appears headed for approval. Several details of the new package still have to be ironed out, but enough is known to guess at some of the implications for the economy and its key sectors:

The Economy And Interest Rates. The $34.4 billion in projected savings for fiscal 1991 falls short of the targeted $50 billion, but it will still be large enough to eliminate much of the "fiscal thrust" from an enlarged deficit that normally would buoy activity as the economy slows. That will further increase the chances of a mild recession into next year.

Interest rates probably won't fall enough to offset the effects of higher taxes and reduced spending. The Federal Reserve is expected to bow to political pressure and ease policy a notch if the financial markets respond favorably to the new accord, but they'll move slowly before easing further because of a weak dollar. Inflation's upward drift earlier this year and the latest jump in oil prices. Moreover, government financing needs continue to soar because of the softening economy and other unexpected spending associated with the S&L bailout and the Mid-East crisis, adding to the concerns at the Fed and among investors. Even if the budget package is passed, the fiscal 1991 deficit now is expected to be $250 to $300 billion compared to little more than $150 billion in fiscal 1989.

The Municipal Bond Market And Other Tax-Deferred Investments. Tax-exempt securities will be among the chief beneficiaries of the increase in taxes. The tax rate for high-income families has been raised modestly, from 28% to 31%. However, the decision to phase-out personal exemptions and cap deductions could boost effective tax rates by several percentage points more (depending on family size and the amount of individual deductions). On an after-tax basis, that makes tax-exempt securities and other tax-free investments, such as annuities, 401(k) plans and other retirement accounts, increasingly attractive, compared to taxable securities.

California. The increased tax bit will be larger than the national average, largely because of relatively high income levels that are more vulnerable to the cap on tax deductions and the phase-out of personal exemptions. Under the original budget compromise, announced earlier this month, the Tax Foundation estimated that per capita Federal taxes would rise from $5,103 to $5,195, and increase of over $92, compared to an $88 increase nationwide. The changes in the latest plan, focusing as they do on added tax hikes for wealthier individuals, probably have widened that disparity.

Donations help CV residents obtain a real life-saver

By SUSAN BECK

YOU CAN'T put a price on human life, and Carmel Valley residents have affirmed that old standby.

With $6,800 in donations from the village community, the Carmel Valley Fire Prevention District recently purchased a First Medic Semi-Automatic Defibrillator which will increase the chance of surviving a heart attack, said Jeff Trapp, training officer for the village fire department.

Bob Heald, the department's fire chief, said that the response to the need for the new equipment is another example of Carmel Valley's community orientation. "We will return the kindness by providing an excellent 'defib' program."

The program is fairly new in California and has only been used on the Monterey Peninsula for the past year and a half. Pacific Grove and Mid Valley fire departments were the first to get the equipment. Now Monterey, Carmel, Pebble Beach, Carmel Valley, and the Rio Road fire station are set up to assist heart attack victims, said Trapp.

Six weeks ago the semi-automatic defibrillator was purchased, and now 28 of the 31 firefighters in the village fire department are certified to use it. Actual training requires 8 hours of instruction by the County Emergency Medical Services, said Trapp.

Within 6 to 8 minutes of a heart attack, without oxygen to the brain and electrical activity to the heart the outcome is non-reversible, fatal, said Trapp. The defibrillator is unique in that it recognizes certain heart rhythms that can be converted to normal rhythms by means of an electrical shock. "It saves lives," said Trapp.

'Our community support is the backbone of the department and without it we would not be the what we are today.'

— Jeff Trapp

The difference between paramedic/hospital defibrillators and these new units is that the former are manual, said Trapp. The department's "defib" analyzes the rhythm and determines if a shockable rhythm can be used, then selects the appropriate energy level for the shock and prompts the operator to deliver the electrical shock to the victim. Trapp said that the "defib" will not deliver a shock on a "non-shockable" heart rhythm.

The real key to the new "defib" program is the resident. "I can have all the equipment sitting here, but that doesn't do us a bit of good if the resident fails to call 911," said Trapp.

After calling 911, the next important step of the program calls for knowing how to administer cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR), said Trapp. "CPR is not difficult, anyone can do it. It's one of the best things a resident can do to provide service to their community and serve their neighbors."

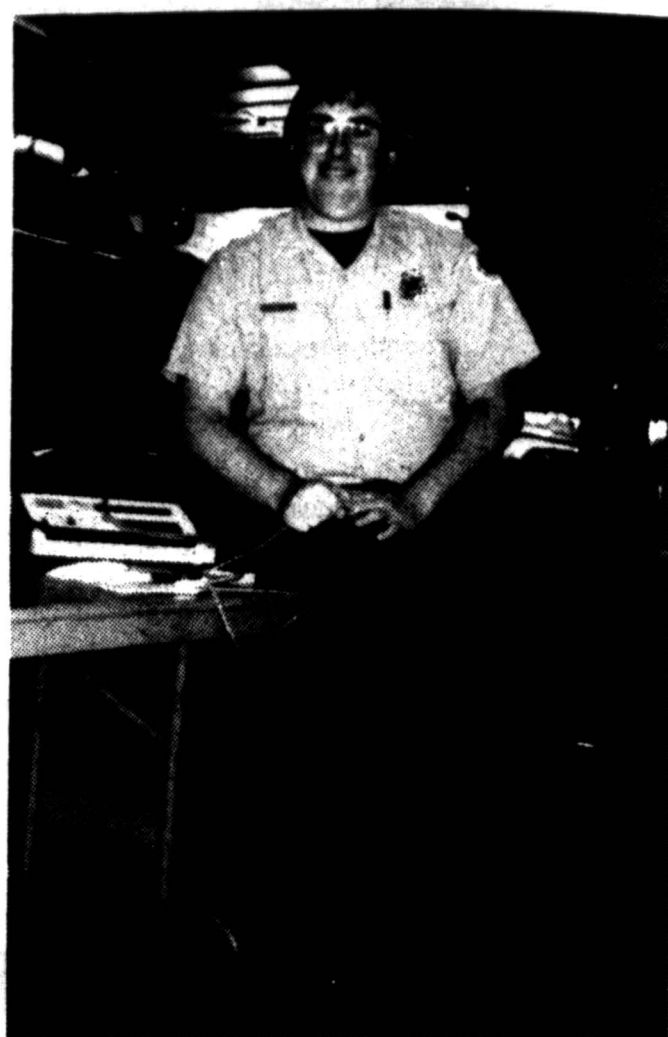

According to the American Heart Association (AHA) 100,000 people a year die from heart attacks in the United States, however, with public involvement, such as calling 911 and applying CPR, the rate could be reduced by 60 percent.

Local communities, the American Red Cross and the AHA provide classes in CPR usually for a recovery cost fee for supplies, said Trapp.

An example of how effective CPR knowledge can be is demonstrated by the residents of Seattle Wash., three-fourths of whom are trained in CPR. Their save rate is now above the national average.

Applying CPR can extend the time frame of survival for a heart attack victim, said Trapp. The additional time allows for rescue personnel to arrive at the scene and use the semi-automatic defibrillator. The "defib" is a valuable program for the future and could not have happened without the generosity of the community, he said.

One of the major donors for the new program was the Independent Insurance Agents of the Monterey Peninsula. The group provided $3,000 from commissions earned from public insurance policies that are set aside for community programs.

Another donation of $1,800 was received from Mr. and Mrs. Gloy of Carmel Valley. Also, the Carmel Valley Kiwanis donated $500.

"Our community support is the backbone of the department and without it we would not be the what we are today," said Trapp.

Knowledge of CPR could save lives

MORE THAN 70 percent of all CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) rescues occur in the home on an individual known by the rescuer.

Statistics show that more than 650,000 people in the United States died from heart attacks in 1986 and that heart disease is the leading cause of death in Monterey County.

On the other hand CPR saves more than 250 lives a day; the more people that know CPR, the more lives that can be saved.

With that in mind the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross offers CPR classes monthly all year.

Classes are held at the Carmel Red Cross house at Eighth and Dolores. Classes include demonstrations and teaching of the Heimlich maneuver. Cost is $20 for the eight-hour class. A certificate will be presented upon completion.

For more information call the Red Cross at 624-6921.

In-house feud develops at water board over golf course ordinance

By FRANK GEORGE

BICKERING OVER an ordinance on golf course water rationing has spread from the board room to the water board itself.

The internecine feud pits Dick Heuer, chairman of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District, and water board director Morris Fischer, until recently the mayor of Pacific Grove.

"Don't set yourself up as some sort of golf course turf management guru," Fischer warned in a scathing letter to Heuer.

In a letter dated Oct. 26 in which he facetiously refers to Heuer as "Chairman Dick," Fischer also told Heuer:

"The board nor I, should be treated like little children being scolded by their daddy."

Fischer's letter was in response to an Oct. 20 letter from Heuer to his fellow board members, calling them to task on their actions on the controversial golf course ordinance, Ordinance 50. (The Carmel Pine Cone obtained copies of the letters from a source who asked not to be identified.)

In his letter, Heuer called the current draft of the ordinance a "sweetheart deal" for members of the Greater Monterey Bay Area Golf Course Association. He said as it stands, the ruling is contrary to the board's original intention of applying greater restrictions on area golf courses.

As of the Oct. 15 board meeting, Ordinance No. 50 requires area golf courses to cut back their collective water use by 23 percent annually. Earlier drafts had demanded as much as 27 percent yearly savings, but 10 months of golf course testimony and various concessions whittled the ruling down to its present figure.

In his letter to directors, Heuer said as a life-long golfer, he believes he has "a better feel than other board members for what savings the golf courses can achieve."

Fischer countered by saying he's more than qualified to vote on golf issues because he has been playing the game since he was in high school. He said 16 years of dealing with golf problems as an elected official in Pacific Grove also has added to his qualifications.

Heuer said the 10 months the board spent on the golf course issue sends a compromising message to special interest groups. He said it shows them if they question the board long enough, the directors will "waffle and wiggle and make compromise after compromise until eventually they get what they want."

Fischer said if anyone has fallen to the wishes of special interest groups, Heuer has, claiming the chairman had been elected by "special water rights groups." He added that he commends Heuer for "even being elected."

Heuer later said he wrote to the directors to remind them their votes need to be based on technical evidence. Some of the evidence he was referring to includes the 25-percent cutback the courses have achieved so far this year, and reports submitted by two of the directors who visited many of the area's golf courses.

Directors Dale Hekhuis and Ken Long's research and meetings with golf course maintenance personnel had apparently gone unnoticed, Heuer said in his letter.

"In this case, relevant evidence of what savings the golf courses could achieve appears to have been ignored," he said.

Asked if the directors normally correspond after decisions are made, Fischer said it's all new to him.

"In the 16 years I've been in office, a chairman of a board or a mayor has never scolded me nor any of my colleagues for the way we voted," Fischer said in a phone interview.

He said he wrote back to Heuer because he was personally offended by the chairman's actions.

Heuer could not be reached for comment.

All this comes to light at a time of strained relations between Fischer and Heuer. The board had recently scheduled the second reading of the controversial ordinance for Nov. 26, but Fischer cried foul at the scheduling, as his term on the water board expires Nov. 13.

Without Fischer's vote, there would be a 3-3 tie on the ruling — three members wanting a 23-percent reduction and three wanting 25 percent.

"Fair is fair," Fischer said. "I've been on this one and I want my vote."

Heuer said the board had no intention of excluding Fischer when they slated the hearing for the 26th. He said other board members simply hadn't thought of Fischer's expiration date when they marked their calendars.

Jim Cofer, general manager of the district, said a deadlock would prevent the ordinance from being adopted. He said the remaining directors would have to keep altering the draft until a four-vote majority is obtained.

Cofer said Fischer, as mayor of Pacific Grove, was appointed to the water board by the Council of Mayors. This group consists of the mayors from the district's jurisdiction, which includes Carmel, Seaside, Monterey, Sand City, Pacific Grove and Del Rey Oaks.

The council will appoint a new director to fill Fischer's position, Cofer said, but he did not know when that would be.

The second reading of the ordinance is now scheduled for 10 a.m. Thursday, Nov. 8 at Seaside City Hall. If the 23 percent is approved at that meeting, the new standards would be retroactive from Oct. 1, which is the start of the 1991 water year.

Eastwood rezone

"We'll see if there are some changes that need to be made to address questions that were raised on Tuesday night (Nov. 6)."

Eastwood's building is situated just over the border of the service-commercial district. The older structures on the parcel, including most of The Hog's Breath restaurant, are in the central-commercial district.

Williams plans to spread the old building's commercial square footage throughout the parcel. He said the city won't lose any service-commercial space or gain any central-commercial space with the mixing.

The central-commercial district is designated for a variety of commercial uses, while the service-commercial zone is primarily for resident-serving stores.

Williams argued some of the residents wanting the services offered in the service-commercial district don't even use them. He said hard economic times are ahead and if the council upheld the commission's decision, the Eastwood-Kaufman building won't be the only empty one in town. (Eastwood owns the building with former wife Maggie Eastwood of Pebble Beach and Roy Kaufman of Los Angeles.)

Councilman Wright argued that according to his computations, Carmel has a higher sales tax revenue per capita than Beverly Hills. He said since sales taxes directly relate to overall community sales, he'd have to see evidence of an economic hardship, and that the hardship is connected to zoning in Carmel.

During the deliberation, planning director Diane White said the new building's underground garage would create a non-conformity. Underground garages are not permitted in the central-commercial district, and central-commercial shops would be housed above the garage.

Williams responded by noting that Carmel Plaza on Ocean Avenue, which is in the central-commercial district, has an underground parking facility.

Williams said the example the council would provide by overturning the planning commission ruling "might be a nice precedent."

Eastwood plans to offer reasonable 10-year leases to the resident-serving shops that will occupy the new building. Williams maintained other landowners may follow suit and request similar rezones that would also attract resident-serving stores.

On the other hand, mystery author Bob Campbell, representing the Carmel Residents Association (CRA), said the rezone would be "illegal." He said it wouldn't conform with the General Plan, which calls for no expansion of the commercial zone.

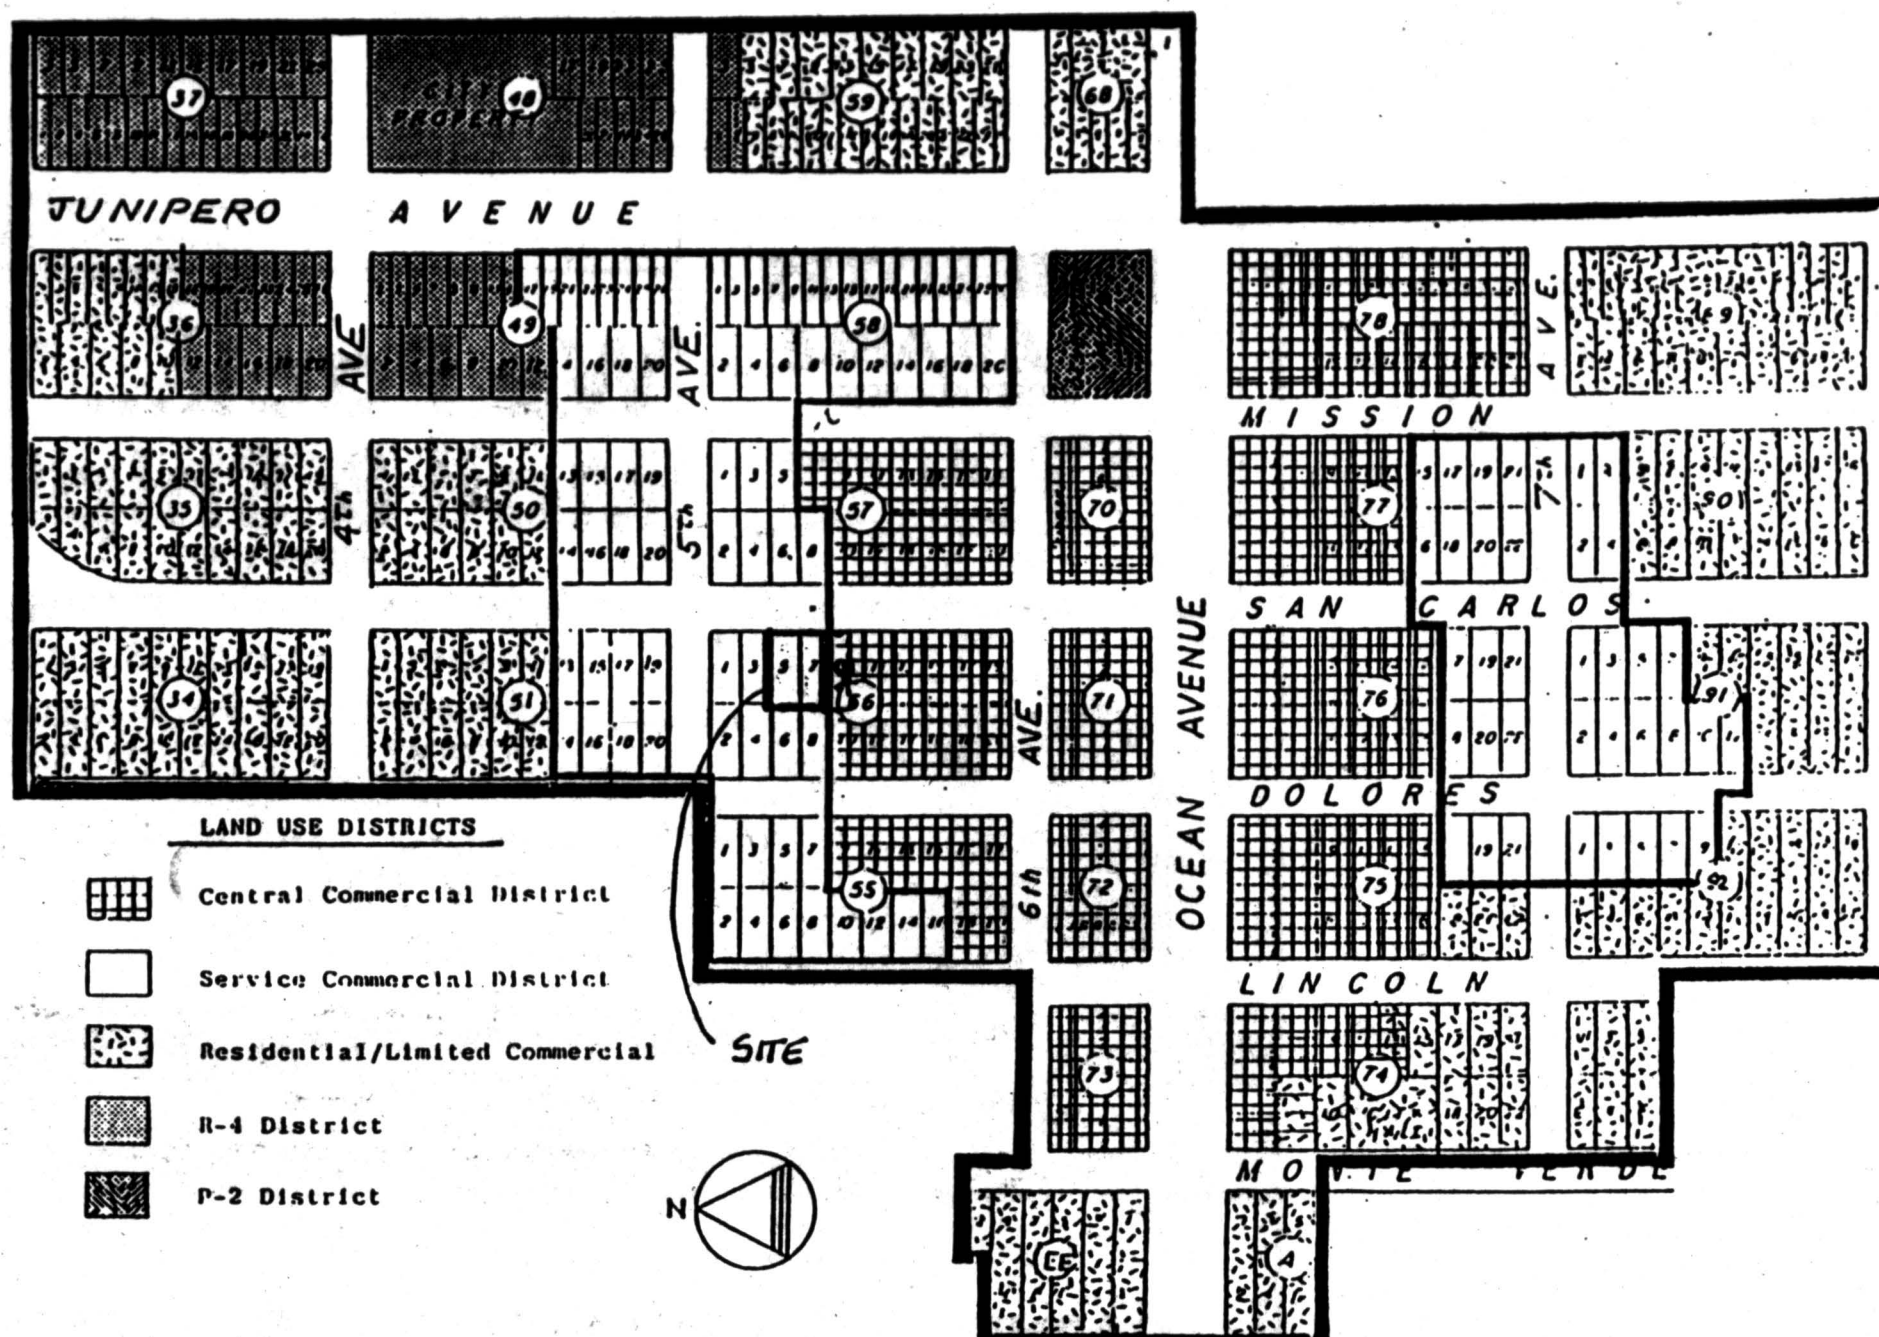

Campbell added the variance allows an extension of the central-commercial zone that could result in "a considerable number of such applications."

Be that as it may, 50-year Carmel resident Mary Leidig supported the variance and told the council to bear in mind the weight room at the Carmel Youth Center. A few years ago Eastwood donated weight equipment to the center, and he's been involved in local charity organizations for many years.

"If you want something for the good of Carmel, you go to Clint first," Mrs. Leidig told the council.

The proposed floor plan for the new building includes a clothing store, an art gallery, a jewelry store and a wallet and purse shop. Art galleries and jewelry stores are central-commercial uses, while the clothing store and the purse shop fit into the resident-serving category.

The Hog's Breath building contain two jewelry stores and an apparel shop as well as the restaurant. Restaurants conform in both the central-commercial and the service-commercial zones.

THE SMALL box marked "site" in the above map shows the location of Clint Eastwood's new building on San Carlos Street between Fifth and Sixth avenues. Lot

9 (to the south of 5 and 7), is just over the central-commercial border and it contains the Hog's Breath buildings. Eastwood wants to mix the commercial use permits from the Hog's Breath buildings throughout the three-lot parcel. The city council unanimously denied the rezone 5-0 at its Nov. 6 meeting.

New program brings the art of the masters into the classroom

By DAVID LELAND

FINE ART offers a language unto itself, regardless of age — witness the art docent program in progress at Carmel River School. Sponsored by the school's PTA and a $500 grant from Friends of Carmel Unified Schools

'We try not to lecture; we try to do a creative questioning approach. The kids have to look and see and actually participate.'

— Christy Auld-Susott

(FOCUS), the 2-year-old program brings the works of masters into the classroom via a hands-on approach.

"We try not to lecture; we try to do a creative questioning approach," says Christy Auld-Susott, whose children Ashely and Evan benefit from the program at the school. "The kids have to look and see and actually participate."

Many times, she adds, the name of the artist is not even mentioned because it only serves to confuse the children with too much information. Here's how the art docent program works.

About 18 parents are given a one-hour training session each semester by Auld-Susott before they are introduced to the students at River School (grades K-5).

"I tell them what works best (with the students)," says Auld-Susott, who worked as an art docent at the Academy of Arts in Honolulu, Hawaii, for 10 years before relocating to the peninsula two years ago.

Volunteers generally work with two classes each semester, with Auld-Susott overseeing the program.

Auld-Susott holds a master's degree in art history from the University of Hawaii.

This fall students in 18 classrooms at River School are taking a closer look at the works of French Impressionist Claude Monet.

In the spring, students will examine the abstract concepts of artist David Hockney.

After discussing the colors and textures of Monet's "Years At Giverny," students are given the opportunity to work with pastels to create their own Impressionistic work during the one-hour classroom period.

"This enriches the art program," says River School Principal Sharron Douglas. "We're making sure that every child has an experience in sharing the language of art."

The rules are simple for students beginning their potential masterpieces: no rubbing the colors and no blowing on the paper.

"We're not scrubbing the Queen Mother's sink today," warns docent Noni McVey, who is teamed with Marian Penn, in teaching Carol Catalano's first-grade class. "(And) no blowing; it will send dust all over your neighbors and make them sneeze."

With those words the kids scramble to their desks and begin work.

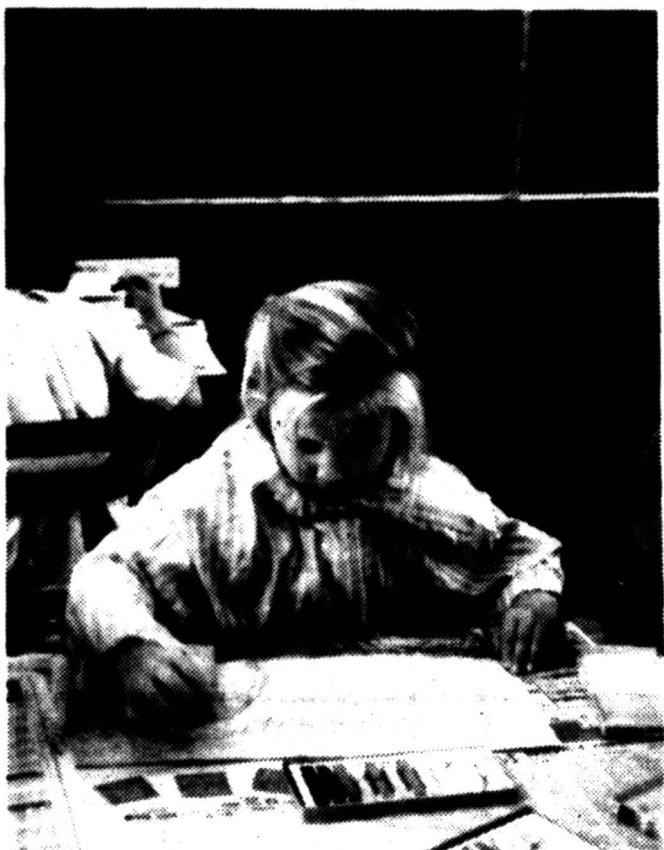

"It's fun because you can make all sorts of stuff and do what ever you want," beams Evan Johnson, as he puts the finishing touches on his drawing of a dog.

At their young age, the first-grade students spend little time analyzing what they can and cannot do. They plunge into their work with a reckless abandon — there is little conversation, with children intent on the task at hand.

"We get to make different colors," beams Emily Bisnett, who has created a colorful rainbow of pastel colors.

Auld-Susott says she is happy with the way the program is turning out fledgling artists.

"It's working out beautifully," she says. "We're interested in seeing what the children see and feel. Their enjoyment is what this is all about."

Toni Doyle Jepson picked as CBA executive director

By DAVID LELAND

TONI DOYLE Jepson brings to the position of Carmel Business Association executive vice president a career rich in business acumen.

Doyle, 48, replaces Lee Chamberlain, who retired from the $20,000-a-year position Oct. 31, after 16 years of service.

'It's a challenge that I am looking forward to. I feel very much a part of Carmel.'

— Toni Doyle Jepson

"It's a challenge that I am looking forward to," said Jepson, who moved to the area in 1982. "I feel very much a part of Carmel."

While 25 applicants initially applied for the part-time position, only three were considered during the final questioning process. Final interviews were conducted by Barbara Simmons and Yvonne McBride.

"Toni knows the area and has experience in this type of thing," said outgoing CBA President Kathie Ritter. "She stood out as being the very best person (for the job). We're very excited to have her on board."

Jepson begins her job officially Dec. 1. CBA boardmembers are overseeing the operation during the interim.

As executive VP, Jepson's duties will include overseeing the CBA office on San Carlos Street, producing a monthly newsletter and attempting to boost the tourism market in Carmel.

Jepson has sold her half of Monterey-based Resort II Me to partner Gloria McPherson, which will allow Jepson to devote all of her energies to her new position.

Founded in 1986, Resort II Me is a room-finder service for groups and hotels seeking accommodations on the Monterey Peninsula.

As a partner in the business, Jepson's duties included formulating and monitoring an annual business and marketing plan, controlling and meeting expenses, developing policy and procedure manual, supervising staff of up to nine workers, maintaining a business relationship with more than 130 hotels and advertising and public relations.

Jepson said she will likely be able to parlay her contacts gained with Resort II Me to her new position.

"I feel we have our finger on the pulse of the visitor-serving industry," said Jepson, whose husband, Cal, is general manager of Carmel Valley Ranch Resort. "We have a lot of statistical information."

As former director of sales and marketing for the Highlands Inn from 1982-86, Jepson knows the power of hustle.

"I think we have to compete in the market," said Jepson, adding that bringing travel writers to the area will be her first order of business. "We are losing people to little towns in Central Valley because they are out there pounding the pavement."

A former real estate broker, Jepson said she is looking forward to continuing working with the city and keeping alive an era of good-feeling between the business community and Carmel.

Jepson also said she takes pride in her community service, which includes serving on the board of directors for the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce, Carmel Business Association, Carmel Bay Soroptimists and Orton Dyslexia Society.

She also served on the steering committees for Monterey County Visitors and Convention Bureau, Monterey County Film Festival and as chairperson for the Monterey Peninsula Marketing Committee for the chamber of commerce.

Jepson, whose son Pete, 15, attends Carmel

TONI DOYLE Jepson has been hired as executive vice president by the CBA to replace Lee Chamberlain, who retired Oct. 31, after 16 years of service. (David Leland photo.)

High School, heaped praise upon Chamberlain for her years of service.

"I'm very concerned about filling Lee's shoes; she was an institution," said Jepson, who managed hotels for the Hyatt Corp. during the 1970s. "Lee and I have been friends for a long time. I feel good that we have a close relationship so I can count on her."

By Jennifer Dyer

The SAT

THE FIRST quarter of school ended last Friday, but there was no respite for weary students Saturday morning.

The fear of the SAT (Scholastic Aptitude Test) descended upon the unsuspecting like some deadly disease, leaving unlucky test-takers exhausted and brain-dead Saturday night. Most spent the evening at home, sleeping off the last inklings of exam fever while dreams of No. 2 pencils without lead dangled in their heads.

The unlucky victims were mostly seniors who had either already taken the test and wanted another crack at it; or late birds who hadn't taken it yet. By 8 a.m., everyone had materialized in the chilly morning sun outside of the Seaside High administrative office. Most woke up early and lay in bed dreading the ordeal to come. Others had been up all night, studying SAT preparation books and looking over old vocabulary lists. A few nonchalant souls had gone to bed early, slept like babes, waking up as fresh as daisies.

There are some steps that SAT-takers can follow the morning of the test. The first is a scalding shower, an essential prerequisite to the SAT. The hotter the water, the better. Of course, with water rationing it's tough to enjoy the shower for any length of time. The purpose of the heat is to control the length of one's stay in the shower. Thus the heat and a water moratorium work together to shorten the time spent hanging over the bathtub edge in a comatose state, sucking in steam and suddenly discovering one's sinuses with frightening clarity.

The next step is to be sure that you have your No. 2 pencil and admissions ticket. Then, after dressing in your most comfortable clothes, go to the test center. Other recommended items that you can bring with you include a watch, an eraser, a snack, tissue (because if you don't have a cold, you will by the time you leave), and a sense of humor.

Step three is very important. Eat breakfast. It doesn't matter where or how much; just eat it. You can go to a restaurant if you're in the mood and have the money. But mom's kitchen will do just as well. Some faithful favorites include a bagel and cream cheese, cereal and milk, toast, cold pizza, last night's leftover turkey, Fudgsicles, etc. There is no food at the test center and you will get hungry before you're finished.

Arrival and registration at Seaside High is a long and cold process. You wait outside in the "crisp" early morning air with 150 other students who are just as frozen and nervous as you. Bring a jacket and mittens.

Eventually, the personnel check your ticket and identification (to make sure you are really you), then assign you an unheated portable classroom. A watchful proctor (SAT policeperson/testgiver), awaits you there, inviting you in and checking to see if you're in the right place; The classroom fills up and eventually the proctor shuts the door. Then the directions are read, and, finally, the test begins.

What is the test itself really like? Well, it's a gnawing headache of indecision as you deliberate between answers (Let's see: is pusillanimous a synonym for a) redoubtable, b) ignominious, c) obstreperous, d) hoary, or e) timid?).

It's your No. 2 pencil worn to a stub, eraserless and useless after you finish. It's a room filled with equally tense students: each fully aware that his or her future is being determined by the angle of trajectory between their pencil and the answer sheet. It's stress that can be cut with scissors. But most of all it's an experience unlike any I've ever known: not because it's so tough (it is hard), but because you return home so completely drained, so thoroughly limp with spent effort, that you spend Saturday evening in a semi-comatose state of exhaustion.

Coming of Age

Of course, maybe this is what the test makers had in mind when they designed the SAT. They were preparing us for college and for other standardized tests that we may take as we follow the yellow brick road of education. Hopeful law school students can take the LSAT while graduate school applicants take the GRE. So the SAT is just the first stop along the path. Or maybe the SAT directors and our parents just want to keep us in on Saturday night.

SPCA needs towels, linens

A plea to the general public is being made by the SPCA of Monterey County for clean towels, sheets, blankets and pillowcases for use in the animal shelter and wildlife center.

Blankets are used as comforters for the many puppies who are brought to the shelter because no one wants them. Prior to their being adopted, the shelter staff tries to make them as comfortable as possible and using blankets helps.

The greatest demand is for clean towels both in the shelter and in the wildlife center.

Donated items can be delivered to the SPCA animal shelter, 1002 Monterey-Salinas Highway 68 (across from Laguna Seca Recreation Area) any day of the week between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. If the donor has a significant quantity and cannot deliver them to the shelter, arrangements can be made to pick them up.

For more information, call 373-2631 or 422-4721.

Worth the weight

SOME OF the "biggest" and highly motivational influences in the world of fitness were in attendance at the Carmel Youth Center's Weight Room Grand Re-Opening on Sunday afternoon.

Former Carmel-by-the-Sea Mayor, actor and concerned citizen Clint Eastwood, introduced seven-time Mr. Olympia and the head of the President's Council on Physical Fitness, Mr. Arnold Schwarzenegger. Mr. Schwarzenegger took a break from a movie shoot in San Jose to help with the re-dedication of the gym and gave a highly inspirational speech on the state of physical fitness in our country today and what we can do to improve our overall physical/mental fitness. He encouraged everyone to eat healthy and get out and exercise and to participate together in recreational events for fun and fitness.

Also in attendance were many people who helped re-equip the weight room, including Mr. Mike Hays from Weider Enterprises who has helped the weight room from its inception three years ago, as well as representatives from Diversified Fitness, L.A. Gear, Life Fitness, and Apple Computer, who donated time, money and products to make the event successful.

Other notables at the proceedings were Mr. John Cates from the President's Council on Physical Fitness, Dr. Tom Deters, editor-in-chief of Muscle and Fitness magazine who gave an informative speech on nutrition, exercise and health, Mr. America, Matt Mendenhall, and the World's Strongest Man, Tom MaGee, who demonstrated weight training techniques in the weight room, and provided guidance to proper workouts. Dr. Deters also presented two scholarships to the Muscle and Fitness camp to Brook Madsen and Forest Aldrich, both from Carmel High and both permanent fixtures in the weight room.

The master of ceremonies was our own strength and conditioning coach Don Covington, who introduced the man who created the weight room, Clint Eastwood. Mr. Eastwood thanked all of the companies who helped in the refitting of the weight room, then turned the microphone over to Mr. Schwarzenegger, who stressed, "we need to help our young people to get into fitness to keep them off the streets and away from drugs!"

"And with the help and commitment of individuals and corporations sponsoring facilities like the youth center's weight room we can start to turn around our young people and get them going in the right direction."

Arnold was impressed by the facility and wished he had something of that quality when he was growing up. He hoped that the young people of this area appreciated it and then proclaimed, "I'll be back!"

Cates, Arnold's right-hand man on the President's Council on Physical Fitness, talked about the importance of fitness for older people, particularly senior citizens. He is in the process of setting up programs throughout the country and hopes to set up one for seniors in our area.

The Carmel Youth Center Weight Room is open for all kids ages 13 to 21, and it isn't just for body builders or weight lifters. Anyone who wants to get in shape can come in and work out at their own pace. There is now an adult session Monday, Wednesday and Friday from noon to 1. For registration information call 626-1255. More classes may be scheduled in the near future.

Don't hesitate to come on by and check the gym out and you can check out where Arnold autographed the wall.

The Carmel Youth Center and Carmel Recreation Department staff did a fantastic job in setting up and coordinating this event and are to be congratulated.

Special announcement! The Carmel Youth Center will be hosting On the Beach's premier showing of a new ski/snow board movie on Sunday evening, Nov. 11th at 6:30 p.m. It's open to the public so come by and check it out. Finally, all you sixth to eighth-graders, check out our SDRWKCAB party on Friday, Nov. 16th from 7 to 9 p.m. Dance, eat, play games and see who is dressed BACKWARDS the best.

Writers' Rock

MENTION LIVE music in Carmel and some people go into a shaking routine that has nothing to do with rock 'n' roll. That was the behind-the-scenes posture at Pacific Monthly's second anniversary party at La Playa when it was casually mentioned the Pointless Sisters would be performing.

Anyone who has seen this group, backed by the Mid-Life Crisis Band, knows that not all things are serious or sacred — particularly music. Of course, music in any form, is intolerable to some when the amplification is up. Consequently the concern was high that the volume be low.

All this while an unsuspecting crowd of magazine supporters and writers mixed in the background.

On stage, thanks to the sportsmanship of the hotel's management, the evening was an old-time blast, albeit somewhat low key. The Pointless Sisters, otherwise known as Michelle Noseworthy, Lynn Bohnen, Leslie MacMillan and Charlie Keeley, opened with Pretty Woman and closed on a rocking Johnny B. Good.

One staid partier (if that's possible), thought they needed to rehearse more, but insiders who know this group for its tongue-in-cheek style of singing were concerned the ladies were polishing more than their nails — the gloss obviously coming from Barry Cowsill as lead singer and inspiration. Averting a crisis of any kind as they played with the amp dial down were Bill Kucher, drums, John Keller, bass, and Fred Noseworthy, guitar.

The evening was more than a celebration of Pacific's staying power. The magazine's writers, including Susan Cantrell, Steve Turner, Judith Broadhurst, Monte Dias and Elaine Glampietro, were honoring a contract negotiated in their behalf earlier this year by the National Writers Union. It's the first writers' contract of its kind for the Santa Cruz-Monterey Peninsula area.

Displaying a versatility few good writers have, National Writers Union member Bill Minor warmed up the evening with a jazz piano demonstration equal to anything up town. Later he sat in with the Beachcombers for a closing salsa number.

The Beachcombers, with Peter Meuse on guitar, Vince Bradley on congas, Karl Dobbratz on bass and percussionist Paige Robertson keeping time on anything within reach, packed the tiny dance floor with a well-paced set of Carib sounds — all rehearsed. Meuse and his men will be heard from some more, although perhaps not in Carmel. Reckon on it.

The whole bash was courtesy of Associate Publisher Scott MacClelland and Editor-in-Chief Jonathan Drake. And that was before 9 o'clock, folks.

TWENTY-FIFTH ANNUAL WATERCOLOR COMPETITION

Eighty-three central California artists from Monterey, San Luis Obispo, Santa Cruz and San Benito counties entered the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History's watercolor competition this year.

Long-time Carmel Art Association member and renowned watercolorist Rollin Pickford judged the show and awarded the Best of Show prize to Grace Meredith of Pacific Grove for "Sur," an innovative figurative piece. Among artists who also garnered awards were: Carolyn Berry of Monterey, Joanne L. Light of Pebble Beach and Renee G. Eaton of Carmel.

Twenty-five years ago the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History started the Annual Watercolor Competitive. Vern Yadon, director of the museum, explains the reason they selected watercolor as the theme and medium of the show.

"We wanted to establish an event purely for the arts and watercolor was considered an 'also-ran' to oil paintings at that time. Of course it is the hardest medium to work in and requires spontaneity. Many great artists do their preliminary studies in watercolor before beginning an oil."

PLEDGE NIGHT

It was a different kind of pledge night when approximately 500 baby boomers descended on the Monterey Plaza for KAZU radio's fifth annual, "A Tasty Affair." No one complained when the regularly scheduled program of wine, food and light jazz was interrupted by the knock-out '20s and '30s sounds of Dotty Doggian, the chanteuse-drummer with the Buddy Jones Group. Musical accompaniment for the three-hour tasting included light jazz by the James Forkner and Bob Phillips Groups.

Amateur oenologists sniffed, savored and tried to remember a selection of approximately 65 wines from 32 wineries. KAZU provided room on the recycled-paper program for crib notes on the margin. The list of wineries was deep and refreshingly different and included several Napa Valley favorites such as Bouchaine, Far Niente, Chimney Rock, Jordan and Folie a Deux in addition to the well-known Monterey and Santa Cruz County labels.

Caterers and restaurants were equally esoteric and included El Cocodrilo Rotisserie and Sea Food Grill and Allegro Gourmet Pizza from Pacific Grove and the Gzdich Ranch Pie Shop.

Pacific Grove's Central 159 served chocolate, cappuccino and espresso. Savvy partiers, however, passed up the coffee concoctions after discovering an herbal tea at the Satori Teas booth that aided digestion of chocolate. Satori's tea made seconds and thirds to chocolate Central a smooth possibility.

The tasting ended at 8 p.m., then Terry Hanck and the Soul Rockers took charge and de-calorized the partiers with three hours of solid beat that could be heard all the way to Carmel.

NEW YORK! NEW YORK!

"New York Style" would have been an appropriate title for the "Opening Night Style" Mozart in Monterey fashion event last week at Highlands Inn. Chairperson and fashion commentator, Leslie

THE SECOND anniversary of Pacific Monthly magazine brought writers and editors together, including National Writer's Union member Ted Castle, a reporter for the Fort Ord Panorama, who shared a laugh with Pacific managing editor Susan Hawthorne and writer Nancy Foster. (Will Wallace photos.)

LOCAL WRITER Deborah Johansen talks shop with Pacific Monthly editor Jonathan Drake and his wife Lynette at the magazine's party. The NWU recently negotiated a contract for writers with the mag.

Allan, introduced by Tom Beardsley as a former New York model agency owner, opened the show with a brusque order to the audience.

"Those of you who aren't seated must move off the carpet and stand against the wall." Sounds familiar if you've ridden the subway around the Big Apple.

Chill out Leslie, you're in California now. Credit must be given to Allan for her efforts to bring some sophistication, although uptight, to us locals. She put her heart into it. As the last model pranced off the ramp, Leslie couldn't contain herself a moment longer. She clasped her hands together, and cursed like a little girl at the school pageant. What a relief! It's over!

GOT A complaint? This guy is a real bulldog. NWU National Grievance Officer Steve Turner of Santa Cruz gives advice to Pacific Monthly jazz columnist Judith Broadhurst at the writers and editors party held at La Playa.

ALWAYS EAGER to play the right-hand part, NWU member and jazz critic Bill Minor is hoping Pacific Monthly associate publisher Scott MacClelland will sit in on the left.

IRONIES AND INTRIGUES

The new Pebble Beach Co. wedding promo brochure with the headline, "Elegance to last a lifetime," must be reaching the right audience. Cynical newspaper men usually don't believe everything they read, but Examiner head honcho Will Hearst took the plunge at The Lodge recently. His third.

Out-of-towners always attract attention in a small town, even if they're only from Cannery Row and the small town is Carmel Valley Village. Sharp-eyed Village residents and merchants don't miss a trick. The Row's Ted Balestreri and Carmel's Don Bowen were spotted scouting out property in the Village the last few days. Looking for more parking for Cannery Row tourists perhaps? Or a Sardine Factory annex?

GET IT RIGHT!

Our apologies to Mary Teel Johnson for taking the liberty of re-naming her Nancy in the Nov. 1 edition of "Coast & Country." Mary is the publicity chair for the Monterey Symphony and Carmel Women's Club.

COLLETE CUCCIA, Highlands Inn wedding coordinator, and Diane Ramistella, CHOMP diagnostic cardiac sonographer, were models for the evening at "Opening Night Style," in which 40 professional women from the peninsula donated their time as models at the fashion benefit. (Chris Hulse photos.)

RICH TERRY, KAZU station manager, was caught by the photog just as he went for one of Central 159's chocolate strawberries, as KAZU board members Chris Stanley and Marty Manson watched approvingly.

Burns Creek bridge plans available for comment in Big Sur

CALTRANS' PLANS for replacement of the two-lane bridge crossing Burns Creek, located 14 miles south of Big Sur, are now available for comment.

About 2,400 cars cross the bridge each day, according to a report known as the Initial Study/Environmental Assessment.

No major improvements have taken place on the bridge since it was built in 1935. The span has had a reduced load limit since 1988, according to the report.

The bridge has been deemed "structurally deficient and functionally obsolete," according to the report.

About $3.5 million has been set aside for improvements.

Caltrans describes three conceptual solutions to the problem, which are outlined in the report: 1) leave the bridge in its current condition; 2) rehabilitate the existing bridge; 3) replace the existing bridge with a new structure.

"Due to the rugged surrounding terrain and nearby residential development, replacement within the existing highway corridor was the only alignment that was seriously considered," according to Caltrans.

Caltrans favors a bridge that is 32 feet wide, which would accommodate two 12-foot lanes and two 4-foot shoulders.

Construction would take place in stages, with the eastern half of the span being built first, using a portion of the existing bridge as a detour. That allows a single traffic lane, with a minimum width of 11 feet to be kept open throughout construction.

The old structure would be demolished and removed as construction progresses.

Construction is expected to begin in the summer of 1992 and continue into the following year, according to the report.

A copy of the report is available at the Big Sur Library.

Caltrans is accepting comments on the document up until Nov. 28, 1990. Written comments should be submitted to:

Varsity Football

The Carmel High School football team lost a close hard-fought game against visiting King City (20-14) last Saturday Nov. 3 at Bardarson Field. Carmel scored first with a touchdown by Dan Kurz. Tobin Leslie scored the second touchdown that culminated an eight-minute, 19-play drive beginning the second half.

Following a late injury to Mario Bertolucci, the Padres tried to engineer a last-minute drive with reserve quarterback Andrew Wilson but were unsuccessful. Playoff opportunities for the Carmel squad depend on the results of two games next week, King City vs. Gonzales and our own match against Pacific Grove. The Padres will finish their regular season at home in the traditional "Shoe Game" which this year combines a 50th year celebration and homecoming.

JV Football

The junior varsity team suffered a loss (34-0) to King City Saturday, Nov. 3 at home. The Padres played a difficult game accented by the good play of Anthony Herro. The team looks forward to their next and final game of the season against Pacific Grove at 11:45 a.m. Saturday Nov. 10.

Fresh Football

The Carmel Freshman lost to King City (42-0). A bright spot was the goal line stand on the 1-yard line with 5 seconds to go in the game after a King City timeout. The coaches complimented the team on their hard work during the second half. The freshman finish their season next Saturday Nov. 10 against Pacific Grove.

Swimming and Diving

The Padre girls finished their regular season this last week with a decisive win over Monterey in a rescheduled meet on Monday Oct. 29, diving championships here at Carmel in the rain and wind on Wednesday, Oct. 31 and the completion of league championships with swimming events on Friday Nov. 2 at the Salinas Municipal Pool. Carmel divers Lauren Humiston, Cindy Boyd, Juliet Ganger, and Amy Miniaci scored championship points for Carmel by winning 7th, 8th, 9th and 10th place on Wednesday.

In Friday's competition, 11 schools from the peninsula, Salinas and newly added Gilroy and Live Oak completed the meet with swimming events. Only the top 12 finishers overall can score for their school.

Carmel's 200 medley relay team (Cristin Clack, Erin Johnson, Tisha Satow, Lauren Johnson), finished fourth with a season best time of 2:04.15. Lisa Kaufman scored 11th in the 200 freestyle (2:21.00). In the 200 individual medley Cristin Clack scored 7th (2:34.01); Jennifer Johnson scored 9th (2:35.71), and Erica Murray finished 11th (2:37.59). Freshman Tisha Satow won the 50-yard freestyle (:25.10) and nearly set a new league record. Lauren Johnson took sixth (:27.06) and Amy Allard won seventh (:27.31). Jennifer Johnson finished ninth in the 100 butterfly (1:14.31). Tisha Satow again won the 100 freestyle (:54.19) while teammate Lauren Johnson took seventh place (1:01.15). Erica Murray won 10th place in the long distance 500-yard freestyle (6:18.19) and JoEllen Van Zander finished 12th (6:26.59). Carmel's 200 free relay (Amy Allard, Julie Ceballos, Lauren Johnson, Tisha Satow), won first place in the event with a new league record (1:46.75). Cristin Clack took seventh in the 100 backstroke (1:14.45). Erin Johnson earned eighth in the 100 breaststroke (1:22.31) while Jennifer Beerman tied for 10th (1:24.20).

Carmel completed the day with a sixth in the 400 free relay (4:18.59). The Padres finished ahead of all of the peninsula/Salinas schools but fell behind the larger Live Oak (254 pts.) and Gilroy (214 pts.) teams, taking third with 183 points.

On Friday and Saturday, Nov. 9 & 10, Carmel competes in the CCS Championships at Stanford University where all three relay teams have qualified and Tisha Satow swims in the 50 and 100 freestyle individual events.

Cross Country

The cross country team competed last Thursday, Nov. 1 at the MTAL league championships held at Toro Park. Will Allan finished fourth overall and the boy's team finished fourth of eight teams behind Gonzales, Alisal, and King City. The varsity squad of Will Allan, Andrew Kylander-Clark, Cody West, Ben Fahrer, Jason Derr, Brian Kingsley, and Jon Pak will travel along with individual runner Heather Andrews to the CCS cross country championships at Crystal Springs outside of Belmont on Saturday, Nov. 10.

Tennis

The girl's tennis team finished with an overall record of 5-14 and a league record of 5-9. Tennis awards presented on Monday, Nov. 5 were: Tricia Miller, Most Valuable; Samantha Clark, Most Improved; and Most Inspirational to Kate and Ali Daniels.

Volleyball

Carmel's varsity volleyball team defeated Santa Catalina in straight games before dropping a closely-contested and hard-fought contest to Pacific Grove in volleyball action this past week.

Leading the Padres were setters Amy Gray and Marni Marasco, hitters Jodi Miller, Holly Morse, Yvonne Leavitt, and Jenny Dyer.

Carmel's Frosh/Soph team dropped a close contest to Santa Catalina before rebounding with a victory over Pacific Grove. That victory improved their league record to 5-8. Strong performances were turned in by back row player Robin Retherford and front row players Bridget Bohnen and Jamie Farrow.

The Padres closed out the season Tuesday, Nov. 6 with a match against RLS.

Dollars for doggies

DORIS DAY, on behalf of the Carmel-based Doris Day Pet Foundation, received a check for $15,912 from Donald Im-lay, trust officer of Security Pacific Bank in Pasadena, during a ceremony at Cypress Inn in Carmel. Im-lay administers the trust for the late Olga Barbee Harris, who set up a perpetual trust for the pet foundation. Once a year, in perpetuity, Day and her foundation will receive a check for investment income from the charitable trust set up in Mrs. Harris' name. Day, who has been a tireless worker on behalf of numerous animal rights and care issues and concerns, set up the foundation in 1977 to help people, their pets and the important responsibilities of pet ownership. ## LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS TO EXPLORE GROWTH ISSUES

Traffic is getting more congested, the water situation is at the critical stage and trees are becoming increasingly hard to find as the peninsula seems to grow farther beyond its means everyday.

The League of Women Voters of the Monterey Peninsula realizes the gravity of the area's growth and has assembled a panel of experts to speak on the issues at the league's general monthly meeting, which is open to the public.

The panel will include Barbara Shipnuck, Monterey County Board of Supervisors Transportation Commission; Dick Heuer, chairman of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District; Robert "Bud" Nunn, Pacific Grove city councilman and vice-president of Association of the Monterey Bay Area Governments and Susan Whitman, Pacific Grove councilwoman.

The guests will talk about moderate and low-income housing, the ongoing drought situation and transportation.

League members will also present a compilation of all development projects currently being proposed for the greater Monterey Peninsula area. The proposals will be presented on a large map of the area.

The program will take place Thursday, Nov. 8 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Monterey Peninsula Unitarian Church, 490 Aguajito Road, Carmel. Wine, cheese, coffee, and cakes will be served to the public.

SANTARAMA XXIV SET FOR NOV. 10

First United Methodist Church of Pacific Grove will hold Santarama XXIV, its annual Christmas Bazaar, on Sat., November 10 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the church. A special feature, the Art Gallery, will present watercolors and collages of local scenes by four peninsula artists, Philoma Goldsworthy, Martha Larson, Gertrude Stone and Joan Devine, and ceramics and stuffed toys by Ruth Phelps.

Needlework and handcrafted items for Christmas home decoration or personal gifts will be found in Gifts Galore and the Children's Corner, and collectors will find unusual and intriguing pieces at the Collectibles Table and Silent Auction. Gourmet cooks from the Country Kitchen and Baked Goods Departments promise difficult decisions at lunch and take-home-goodies time.

WORLD AFFAIRS COUNCIL TO DISCUSS GLOBAL ECONOMY

"The United States in the Global Economy: The Battle for Resources and Markets" is the topic for the 1990 Bruce Smith Conference sponsored by the World Affairs Council and Monterey Peninsula College on Saturday, Nov. 10 from 9 to 4 p.m. at Monterey Peninsula College Lecture Forum No. 103.

Richard J. Barnet, author of frequent articles in The New Yorker and often interviewed on national television, will be the opening speaker on the topic "New Realities of the World Economy."

Renowned radio and television news analyst William Winter will offer a strategy for the United States to remain a world economic superpower. Other experts on international economic technology and competition are Dr. Joel Kugelmass, head of computer technology at U.C.-Davis and Dr. Stephen S. Cohen, co-director of the Berkeley Roundtable on International Economics at UC-Berkeley.

The conference is free and open to the community. As seating will be limited, please phone 625-0208 for a ticket and reservation for a box lunch, if desired.

CONCERNED WOMEN'S GROUP TO MEET NOV. 16

The Monterey Chapter of the Concerned Women for America will meet the third Friday of the Month. The next meeting will be Nov. 16, at 10 a.m. at 739 Sinex, Pacific Grove. Anyone interested in this grass-roots organization to help promote family values is welcome. Please call 375-6882 or 649-8565 for more information.

THREE NEW BOARD MEMBERS FOR CHILDREN'S SERVICES CENTER

Salinas attorney Michael Albov, Dianne Caprio, D.D.S., a specialist in family dentistry from Monterey, and Louis Rolle, Carmel, a retired consultant, have joined the board of directors of the Children's Services Center, it was announced by board president Christopher M. Bock, following the scheduled October meeting.

The center is a non-profit, state-licensed adoption and foster family agency serving children and families of Monterey and San Benito counties.

Other board members are David Laredo, Pacific Grove; Constance Covington, M.D., Salinas; Virginia Bush, Monterey; Stan Cook, Seaside; Charles Enders, Jr., Monterey; Ed Flatley, Pacific Grove; Margaret Frudden, King City; Bruce McGowan, Salinas; Janice Searle, Del Rey Oaks; Cheryl Rorie, Carmel Valley; and Roderick Stewart, Seaside.

The 15-member board directs the center's ongoing programs such as counseling pregnant teens, adoption services and treatment, foster family care for children and youth with very special emotional and educational needs.

The new members fill expired terms of Linda Dorris, Carmel Valley; Barbara Nucci, Salinas; and the Honorable William Wunderlich of Pacific Grove.

AARP SEEKING NEW MEMBERS

Chapter No. 97 of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) meets on the second Tuesday of each month in Monterey. Members are from the towns of Monterey, Salinas, Carmel, and Pacific Grove. Chapter 97 is one of the oldest chapters in the nation; however, unless Chapter 97 gets some new younger members it will have to return its charter to the national headquarters, says president Bess Binkert.

At this time of year the Nominating Committee is trying to obtain a full slate of officers for 1991 and they are having much trouble getting members to accept these responsibilities. The present officers have already served more than the two-year term that is usually acceptable, but no one has come forth to carry on the work of the chapter.

Anne Anderson, who is the acting state director for California, has been in contact with Binkert concerning the steps necessary to

COMMUNITY FORUM EXPLORES TRAFFIC ISSUES

The second in the series of annual forums sponsored by Leadership Monterey Peninsula Alumni Association will focus on traffic issues, trends and cooperative efforts of local government. It will be held Tuesday evening, Nov. 13 at 7:30 p.m. in the Steinbeck Forum of the Monterey Conference Center.

A panel of traffic specialists will explore issues confronting peninsula residents in regard to traffic flow and issues. Members of the panel will include Assemblyman Sam Farr; Monterey County Supervisor Sam Karas; Jerry Laumer, deputy director of Caltrans; Nick Papadakis, executive director of AMBAG; Ed Fincke, assistant general manager of Monterey-Salinas Transit; and Ron Lundquist of Monterey County Department of Public Works.

Lundquist of Monterey County Department of Public Works.

Bruce Johnsen, a management consultant and a Leadership

Monterey Peninsula graduate will be moderator. The forum is co-chaired by Leadership Monterey Peninsula graduates Mike Armstrong, general manager, Pajaro Valley Water Management Agency and Lorene Becker, production manager, The Image Factor. Leadership Monterey Peninsula Alumni Association is comprised of graduates of eight Leadership Monterey Peninsula programs conducted since 1983.

The forum is open to the public. Those in attendance will have an opportunity to interact with the panelists.

ALZHEIMER'S ASSOCIATION HOSTS WORKSHOP

Today there are more than 4 million people with Alzheimer's disease, and more than 4,000 of these victims are our neighbors, friends, or family in Monterey County. The Alzheimer's Association of Monterey County will be presenting two public information workshops in November, which is National Alzheimer's Disease Awareness Month.

Committed to standing by the victims and their caregivers, the association offers these programs at no charge for anyone wanting to learn more about the illness and the help that is available. The date and location of the peninsula workshop is:

Monterey Public Library Meeting Room, 625 Pacific St., Monterey, Thursday Nov. 15, 1 to 3 p.m. Presenters: Pat Herro, VNA/Alzheimer's, Resource Center, and Toni Jacobsen, Alzheimer's Association.

Please call our Monterey office 647-9890, or our Salinas office 442-8928 if you have any questions.

CARMEL VALLEY CHIROPRACTOR TO LECTURE ON HOMEOPATHY

Patricia Wolff (D.C., M.F.C.C.), co-owner of the Carmel Valley Chiropractic Clinic, will be the guest lecturer at the Granary Market, Pacific Grove, on Thursday, Nov. 15 at 7 p.m. Wolff's topic is "Homeopathic Health Care." The public is invited to attend this free lecture.

Dr. Wolff earned her bachelor of science degree in psychology at Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y. and her master of science degree at Lesley College in Cambridge, Mass. she worked with adolescents at Hastings House, a residential treatment center for male juvenile delinquents in Boston, and later at the Somerville (Mass.) Community Mental Center.

Her interest in the relationship between mental and physical well-being led Wolff to pursue further studies and graduate from the Los Angeles College of Chiropractic in 1982. In 1984, she began the lifelong study of homeopathy, and uses this important healing art in conjunction with her chiropractic practice.

Prior to moving to Carmel Valley, Wolff practiced with a multi-disciplinary group of health providers in Santa Monica. Further information is available at the Carmel Valley Chiropractic Clinic, 659-5180.

with reliable information. Informed people make more responsible choices. This is especially so in the field of health and wellness."

With that in mind, the Granary is offering a series of lectures in November on health and wellness through alternative forms of care and treatment. Three different lectures on Thursday nights will cover the subjects of Naturopathic Medicine, Homeopathy and Herbs.

On Nov. 8, Katherine Wilson, N.D., graduate of John Bastyr College of Naturopathic Medicine will present a lecture on how naturopathy can assist in building up the immune system, and maintaining optimal wellness.

On Nov. 15, Patricia Wolff, a local doctor of chiropractic, will explain the unique properties of homeopathic medicine and why it is rapidly becoming a complement to conventional medicine. Homeopathy already enjoys considerable support in Europe, including England's Prince Charles among its proponents.

On November 29, Christopher Hobbs, noted herbalist and botanist will present a lecture entitled "Herbs for Living Health." A fourth generation herbalist, Hobbs has lectured extensively in the U.S. and abroad, has written a number of books, pamphlets, magazine and journal articles. He has developed his own unique herbal formulas, samples of which he will be sharing.

The lectures are free. They will begin promptly at 7 p.m. and will take place at 167 Central, Suite C. To register or for additional information, please call the Granary at 372-2533. Since seating is limited, early registration is encouraged.

CARMEL HIGH SCHOOL MERIT SEMIFINALISTS

Congratulations are in order for Carmel High School seniors, Jennifer H. Dyer, Forrest S. Melton and Sanford T. Owings, who are semifinalists in the 1991 Merit Scholarship Competition.

They, along with approximately 15,000 other academically talented semifinalists, represent about half of one percent of each state's graduating class. Semifinalists have an opportunity to continue in the competition for some 6,000 Merit Scholarships, worth approximately $25 million, to be awarded next spring.

More than one million students in over 19,000 U.S. high schools entered the 1991 Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT-NMSQT). The semifinalists are the top scorers who must now advance to the finalist level of the competition in order to be considered for Merit Scholarships. To qualify as a finalist, a semifinalist must have an outstanding academic record, must be endorsed and recommended by the school principal, must confirm PSAT-NMSQT performance on the SAT, and must complete a detailed scholarship application that includes a self-description and information about scholastic accomplishments, school and community activities, and educational plans and goals. Award recipients will be the candidates judged to have the greatest potential for success in rigorous college studies.

ART ASSOCIATION VOTES IN NEW MEMBERS

The Carmel Art Association jurying for prospective members took place Sept. 12th. After viewing over 200 works the board of directors by a two-thirds vote elected to permanent membership the following: Alicia Meheen of Carmel, painter; Belinda Vidor of Carmel, painter; Terry R. Baker of Pebble Beach, painter.

Samplings of these new members works will be on view at the Carmel Art Association Gallery during the month of October.

HISTORY AND ART ASSOC. ELECTS OFFICERS

In the recently renovated Cooper-Molera gardens the Monterey History and Association held its annual membership meeting, Sept. 16, with some 250 members in attendance. The barbecue committee under the direction of John McCune prepared a barbecue for members.

The election was held for board of directors and officers of the association. Officers installed were: Dr. Philip Nash, president; John McCune, vice president; Jane McCune, secretary; and Tom Verga, treasurer.

In charge of the arrangements was Carol Todd, a former president of the association.

President Nash reviewed the accomplishments of the association over the past year and recognized members who had contributed to the success of the association.

Chairman of the board, Gordon Paul Smith, announced that the Capital Campaign for the new Stanton Center was within $500,000 of the almost $6 million needed for the project. He also announced that the shovel will go into the ground shortly after the first of the

OBITUARIES

JoAnn LaTorra

JoAnn LaTorra, former music critic for The Carmel Pine Cone in Carmel and a resident of Pacific Grove for the last six years, died of cancer at her home on Oct. 24. She was 57.

Born in Boulder, Colo., on Oct. 13, 1933, Ms. LaTorra was a graduate of the University of Colorado and received her master's degree in music from the University of Arizona. She was completing research for her doctorate at the time of her death.

A former resident of Los Angeles, she taught at Deep Springs College and the California Institute of the Arts. Locally, she taught music privately, as well as at the Monterey Peninsula College. She was also an accompanist for local singers and groups.

Ms. LaTorra was an organist and choir director at several churches, most recently at St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Spreckels and the First Presbyterian Church in Monterey. She was also a soloist on piano and harpsichord.

She was a founding member of the Canadian Connection, an early music group, and served as past dean of the Monterey Bay chapter of the American Guild of Organists.

She is survived by her mother, Ellen LaTorra of Pacific Grove; and numerous cousins. Her former husband was David Smith of Tucson, Ariz.

The Neptune Society was in charge of cremation arrangements.

A memorial service is being planned for December at St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Spreckels.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the Monterey Chapter of the American Guild of Organists, c/o Margaret Salvagno, treasurer, P.O. Box 984, Greenfield 93927.

Jon Konigshofer

Jon Konigshofer of Carmel, a designer and builder, died of cancer Oct. 13 at the Hospice of the Central Coast. He was 84.

Born on Jan. 13, 1906, in Alameda, Mr. Konigshofer had lived in the Carmel area for 60 years. He was designer and builder of the Monterey Peninsula Yacht Club and of many homes on the peninsula, as well as homes, estates and commercial structures in other areas of California and in Mexico.

JOANNE LATORRA

He was mentioned in the 1949 supplement to the Encyclopaedia Britannica as an outstanding modernist, and a 1952 article in Life magazine described his buildings and designs.

Mr. Konigshofer served as a Navy lieutenant commander in the South Pacific during World War II, taking part as control officer in five major invasions; he was one of the first Americans to enter Nagasaki after it had been destroyed by a nuclear bomb.

An avid yachtsman, he was a past commodore of the Stillwater Yacht Club, founded the children's sailing program at Stillwater and took part in ocean racing competitions with his racing sloop, Wild Wind.

Mr. Konigshofer is survived by his wife, Beryl.

Private cremation took place under the direction of the Mission Mortuary.

Edna M. Parratt

Edna Martin Parratt died of respiratory failure at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula on Oct. 13. She was 89.

Born in Tonopah, Nev., on March 24, 1901, Mrs. Parratt had been a resident of Carmel and the peninsula for 30 years.

She was a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley and was reference librarian at the university's Bancroft Library for many years.

She was a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority and received her 50-year pin in 1972.

Mrs. Parratt was former managing director of the California Historical Society in San Francisco and received a citation of merit for long and conscientious service. She was active with the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross, served as a board member of the Carmel Museum of Art and was on the library committee of the Monterey History and Art Association.

She is survived by a niece, Carolee Alexander of Stockton, and several cousins. Her husband, Rogers, died in 1982.

At her request, no services were held. Cremation was at Little Chapel by-the-Sea under the direction of Paul Mortuary. Inurnment is at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery in San Rafael.

It is suggested that any memorial contributions be to the charity of the donor's choice.

Allene Comley

Allene Comley, a resident of Pebble Beach for 33 years, died of a heart ailment at her home on Nov. 1.

Born in Columbus, Kansas, on April 21, 1903, Mrs. Comley owned the Cottage Bread and Pastry Shop in San Jose with her husband before their retirement in 1957.

She was a member of the Monterey Peninsula Country Club and a former member of the Order of the Eastern Star of San Jose and the First Christian Church of San Jose.

Mrs. Comley is survived by her husband, Ronald; a daughter, Patricia Rosenberg of San Jose; two grandchildren; and one great-grandchild.

No services were held. After cremation at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea, her ashes were scattered at sea. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the donor's favorite charity.

Sally J. Patton

Sally J. Patton of Carmel, an internationally known leader in the area of gifted and talented education, died Oct. 22 at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

Born in Cleveland, Ohio on Sept. 12, 1926, she earned her doctorate from McGill University in Quebec and was an author and consultant for gifted education throughout the United States, Canada, the United Kingdom and Mexico. She was founding director of the McGill University Summer School for the Gifted, an international training school for educators of the gifted and talented.

For the past 10 years, she had taught gifted education classes at San Jose State University. As a consultant for the past three years in the Alisal Union School District, she developed and implemented the Volunteers in Service to America summer school program in the district.

Her last position was as director of the Project VIA-SOI, a federally funded project designed to identify gifted minority students, particularly those with limited English-speaking ability. Through this project, she was involved with all of the school districts in Monterey County with high minority populations.

She is survived by a son, Scott of Carmel and two grandchildren.

She also leaves her close friend, Ervin Swanigan.

A gathering of her family and friends was held Oct. 26 at her home.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the Carmel Public Library Foundation, P.O. Box 2042, Carmel 93921

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

People over 65 are more likely to contribute spontaneously to a worthy cause than any other group, according to a study by a University of Detroit psychologist. To test responses by age groups, a pregnant woman asked 1,300 passersby in a mall to give a donation to help reduce birth defects. Responses increased from one age group to the next, from 52 percent contributing among people up to 24 years old, to 66 percent of those 25 to 34, to 85 percent of those over 35, and to 95 percent of folks over 65.

Charlie Dunn was born in 1898 — one of 10 children in a boot-making family. He made his first pair of boots at age seven, was apprenticed to a skilled bootmaker, then studied art, design and the structure of the foot — bones, blood vessels and ligaments. In more than 80 years of practicing exquisite craftsmanship he earned a worldwide reputation as the Michelangelo of custom-made cowboy boots. Dunn retired twice, in 1975 and again in 1988. But even past age 90 he continued as a consultant.

Treats, not tricks

From the Nov. 11, 1982
Carmel Pine Cone

Oh Almighty and eternal God. We humbly ask thy blessing on this food and bless us all to do thy service in the time spent of Rotary service above self.

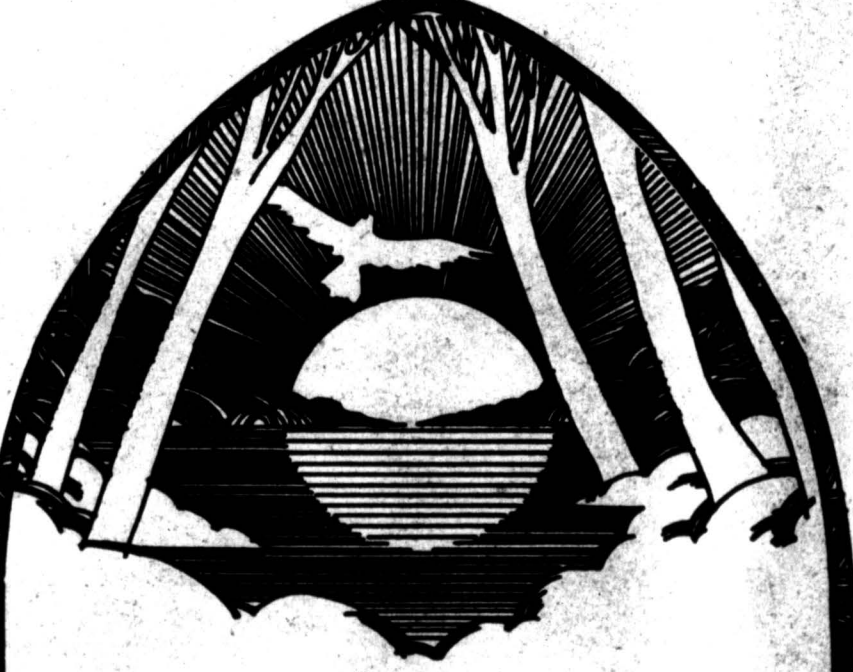

May the changing moods of the human heart never blind us to your love.

Halloween is a Celtic feast older than Christianity. It was adopted by the church and it became All Hallows Eve or the eve of All Saints Day. It is a feast of surprises and Almighty God is the greatest trick and treater of all. He has pulled one huge, monumental trick on us. He created us without asking whether we wanted it or not.

Throughout our life all kinds of things happen, both good and bad, whether we want them or not. He promises that if we like the trick, he will treat us in time and eternity. God created us out of love and he demands that we love him and our neighbors in return. These two commands are inseparable. We can not have one without the other.

Almighty God has given men the Halloween capacity to surprise, astonish, delight and entertain us. Take a look at your close friends, your spouse, your family, ask yourself whether you let them surprise, astonish, delight and entertain you the way God designed them to do.

Oh Lord, please give us the childlike capacity to love you and our neighbor. Never allow us to take anyone for granted. You are the ultimate tricker, Oh Lord, so don't forget our treat.

CRITIC AT LARGE

By Mac McDonald

Doc's is hot

WHO SAYS you can't the jaded Monterey Peninsula rock crowd out for live music these days?

Doc Rickett's Lab on Cannery Row is proving a lot of people wrong these days by scheduling nationally known recording acts in its tiny club for the past few months. So far names such as Kris Kristofferson, Edgar Winter, Rick Derringer, Ozark Mountain Daredevils, Terrance Simien and the Mallet Playboys, Walter Trout, and recently retro-rocker Chris Isaak and fusion guitar whiz Robben Ford, have all graced the club's miniscule stage.

Upcoming shows will feature: The Havalinas (Nov. 12); the "Father of British Blues" himself, John Mayall (Nov. 14); country blues rocker Elvin Bishop (Nov. 19); Cajun boogie band, The Sundogs (Nov. 20); Santa Cruz stalwarts, Kraft/O'Neill Group (Nov. 26); and the Hot Rod Lincoln man himself, Commander Cody (Nov. 27).

Isaak will be squeezed in again somewhere in there, and well he should, his performance at Doc's Oct. 29 qualifies as one of the year's best nightclub shows and one of the best shows in this area in many a moon. A lot of people who got turned away from that sold-out show will know better this time. And although Robben Ford wasn't sold out for his two shows, he still drew a sizable crowd — many of them local musicians out to see a master guitarist ply his trade.

The Monterey Peninsula hasn't seen lineups like these since the heyday of the early '80s when places like The Club, The Oz, Monterey Music Hall, Cuckoo's Nest, and Mission Ranch were in full swing.

And who would have thought that all this excitement would be generated by Doc Rickett's? Certainly not owners Kelly and Rosemary Leonard, who have owned the local fixture since 1982. Doc's has always been known (well at least in the last couple of years), as a great place for local bands to cut their teeth and for locals to hear decent live music without ever having to pay a cover, albeit in a small, loud and low-ceilinged club not unlike the Cavern Club of old.

It wasn't until the Leonards collaborated with Spring Productions out of Pacific Grove, headed by Dave Svec and Mike Evans, that the place started to generate some real heat. The opportunity to feature national acts presented itself when Brook Lewis, owner of The Club, decided to drop his only live music night, opening the door wide open to Svec, Evans and the Leonards.

There are still a few bugs to work out yet (such as when and when not to put chairs on the dance floor — Isaak's crowd got rid of them, Ford's crowd could have used them), and most of the acts get booked on weeknights, but that's dictated by the whims of the music industry, so, to paraphrase someone whose name escapes me now, we don't care when we get 'em, as long as we get 'em.

And for now at least, we got 'em.

No lack of tasks for new Sunset Center director

By ANNE PAPINEAU

BRIAN DONOGHUE, at the helm one month as Carmel's Community and Cultural Center Director, has both small wishes and tall dreams in his new role. One thing that would make him quite happy, for example, would be a full Sunset Theater for next Tuesday's screening of the World War II-vintage Technicolor musical, Cover Girl.

"I'm shocked the classic film series is not packed. It's a great way to spend one day out of the month," said Donoghue, 41. "We have a little talk at the beginning, there's a great bunch of people, and it's only $2.50, for heaven's sake."

Donoghue was appointed director in August, selected from 160 applicants in a coast-to-coast search. He succeeded Richard Tyler, who retired from his city post earlier this year. Before moving to Carmel, Donoghue served as program director for cultural arts at Northeastern University in Boston. But he is a California native who received bachelor's and master's degrees in theater arts from California universities.

The responsibilities of the Carmel community and cultural center director are many and far-reaching. Donoghue must shepherd activities that range from sculpture classes to a nationwide playwriting competition. He plans, books, organizes and encourages. The director must be versed in such divergent knowledge as fiscal planning and theater design.

According to a resume distributed by the city, "his professional experience and strength has been in program development." But Donoghue is bullish about many of the programs already booked at Sunset Theater before his arrival.

"I want to do some exciting programming but there are some things going on right now that should be enjoyed. We recently brought the Battlefield Band, a bagpipe ensemble that actually performed some rock and roll. We had 350 people see it in a theater that seats more than 700. That's a terribly small response."

"I would beg people in Carmel to be more proactive in their support of the arts. It's not as though we're asking them to write a check. We're asking them to enjoy a wonderful evening of performance," he asserted.

BRIAN DONOGHUE, formerly program director for cultural arts at Northeastern University in Boston, is now at the helm of the Sunset Community and Cultural Center. All are invited to meet the new cultural center director during a reception set 5 to 7 p.m. Friday, Nov. 9 in the Chapman Room of Sunset Center, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel. (Mac McDonald photo).

But if audience size displeases him, Donoghue has many positive statements to make about culture and Carmel.

"When you're being interviewed for a job, everyone is on best behavior. I hope what I was sensing in those two laborious days was true."

The cultural scene here looks very healthy. It's obvious strong point is in the field of classical music."

Indeed, the gothic-arched Sunset Theater, just one focus of Donoghue's attentions, is home to the Carmel Bach Festival, Keyboard Artist Series, Monterey County Symphony, Carmel Music Society and Chamber Music Society of the Monterey Peninsula. It also hosts concerts by the Monterey Bay Chamber Orchestra and other groups.

In terms of programming, the City of Carmel also serves the occasional concert (The Battlefield Band), as well as dance and theater offerings as part of its Lively Arts series. The city ticket price: $10 and $12.50.

"The city has been extremely nurturing in its fee schedule. It's probably one of those things people don't appreciate," Donoghue maintained. "And the technical support that the city affords resident groups is another underlying, subtle support system."

Resident groups are many. There are the musical organizations previously mentioned. The Photographic Center of the Monterey Peninsula maintains gallery and workshop space in the site formerly occupied by the Friends of Photography. Children's Experimental Theatre, the Forest Theater Guild and GroveMont Theater regularly stage plays on both the indoor and outdoor stages of the historic Forest Theater. The Boy Scout House located across the street from the Sunset Center complex is home to numerous classes and workshops. And Sunset Center itself is a rabbit warren of studios, offices and meeting rooms, clustered around its much-booked theater.

In his first weeks on the job, Donoghue has

"SWEET HOME" reads the name over this doorway in Chorillo, one of the few buildings that photographer Eileen O'Leary found still standing in this neighborhood that housed the headquarters of Panamanian leader General Manuel Noriega.

Photographer journeys for up-close Panama view

By ANNE PAPINEAU

A SENSE of injustice being done prompted Eileen O'Leary to pack her cameras and book the first commercially available flight to Panama after its December 1989 invasion by U.S. forces.

"My flight out stopped in Miami on Jan. 4. That was the day Gen. Noriega arrived in Miami. There were many, many Panamanians outside the Miami courthouse and they were celebrating because they thought this meant they could go home," said O'Leary.

The Carmel Valley resident, who had never been to Panama and does not speak Spanish, financed her own journey of discovery. Formerly employed in the computer industry both here and in the United Kingdom, O'Leary now considers herself a full-time photojournalist committed to social issues.

The fruit of her January trip to Panama is a portfolio of images published around the world. Titled "Panama - A Just Cause?", the pictures can be viewed through Sunday, Nov. 11 in the galleries of the Photographic Center, housed in Carmel's Sunset Center.

And this Thursday, Nov. 8, O'Leary will embark on another flight south, to again meet with some of the many Panamanian refugees she encountered in January, and to document their progress, or lack of progress.

At the time of the invasion, O'Leary recalls, "I had been at a movie in Carmel. I went home that

When it comes to lunch... we mean business.

When it comes to a business or a personal lunch a nothing is more important than, quick service, great food and a restaurant that shows you've got style. Cafe Fina, the new upscale cafe on Fisherman's Wharf, has it all.

Besides high energy and animated conversations, Cafe Fina features generous portions of fresh seafood, mesquite grilled chicken and beef, garden salads, brick oven pizzettes, and handmade pastas and homemade sauces flavored with fresh herbs.

Your host, and owner, Dominic Mercurio looks after guests with warmth, concern and expertise gained from over a decade of experience.

THE BLUE MARLIN,

on the Wharf, specializes in distinctive Baja style seafood and artfully grilled black angus steak.

The menu includes such intriguing appetizers as roasted poblano pepper stuffed with chicken, raisins, and cheese in a piquant red sauce, cactus salad and a zesty shrimp cocktail to set the mood off right.

For dinner, the black angus steak is juicy and prepared to your liking or try the grilled chicken breasts in chile salsa overflowing with flavor. Feast on a bountiful platter of fresh seafood with plump scallops, prawns, and squid surrounding a whole fresh fish, or perhaps try the excellent grilled prawns with lime butter sauce.

And for dessert, a key-lime tart, or a delicious flan doused with caramel sauce - best lingered over on the sundeck overlooking the harbor.

Astronomer discusses search for intelligent life

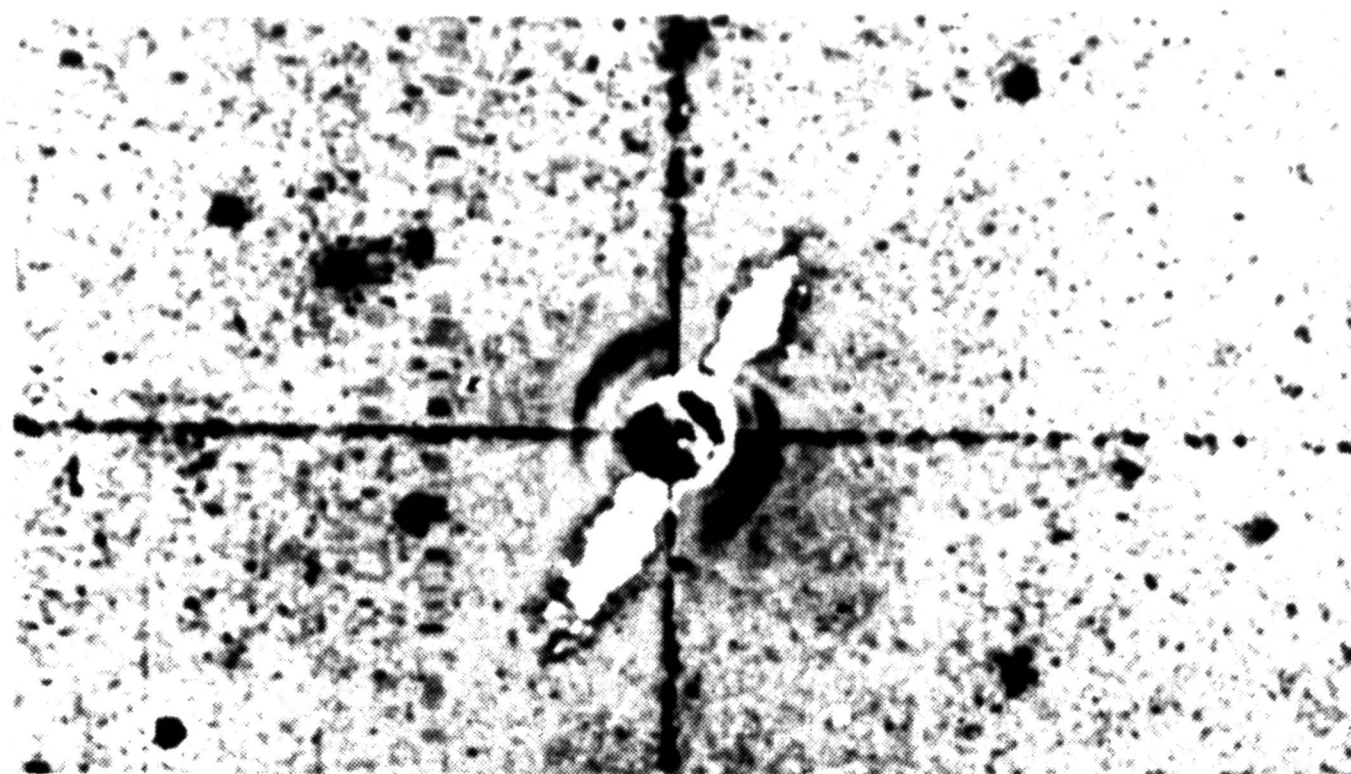

ASTRONOMER Andrew Franknoi, executive director of the Astronomical Society of the Pacific, will give a free public lecture at Santa Catalina School, Monterey, at 8 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 10 to discuss the search for life in the universe.

The scientist, who currently teaches astronomy and physics at San Francisco State University and formerly hosted "Exploring the Universe" on KGO-FM in San Francisco, will speak under the auspices of the Monterey Institute for Research in Astronomy (MIRA). Among the topics to be discussed are "the reason for optimism in the search for intelligent life in the universe" and "current efforts to make contact with other civilizations." The capabilities of the Hubble Space Telescope (once it has been corrected) for hunting out planets orbiting other stars will also be reviewed.

Franknoi, speaking as MIRA's third annual Chesley Bonestell Memorial lecturer, has lectured throughout the United States. He has also written eight books and numerous articles on astronomy and serves on the board of directors of NASA's SETI (Search for Extraterrestrial Intelligence) Institute. He was educated at Harvard and the University of California at Berkeley.

MIRA, the sponsoring organization, is one of the few independent observatories in the United States. Since its founding in 1972, the Institute's observatory, professional staff, educational outreach programs, and volunteer support group have earned national recognition for projects that expand mankind's knowledge of the universe.

For more information about the lecture or about MIRA, call 375-3220 during business hours.

ONE OF THE best pieces of evidence for planetary formation around another star is seen in this photograph of the star Beta Pictoris. To cut down on the brightness, astronomers used a device to block out the light of the central star in order to see fainter material around it. Here we see a disk of dark material. The disk is seen edge-on and is at least 10 times the size of the orbit of Pluto. We believe our solar system — the planets, moons, asteroids and the sun — formed from such a disk. Andrew Franknoi will give a lecture "Are We Alone? Is there Life Among the Stars?" discussing the possibility of other planets orbiting such stars.

Highlands Inn plays host to 'Masters of Food and Wine'

THE FIFTH annual Masters of Food and Wine will present one of the most prestigious gatherings of international chefs and winemakers ever assembled on the West Coast Feb. 26-March 3, 1991 at Highlands Inn, Carmel.

Paul Bocuse, regarded by many as the father of "nouvelle cuisine," will join master chefs and winemakers from France, Germany, Italy and the United States at Highlands Inn to include: Joachim Splichal of Patina in Los Angeles; New York's Charles Palmer of Aureole and Jean-Georges Vongerichten of Restaurant Lafayette; Bradley Ogden of the San Francisco Bay Area's Lark Creek Inn; Peter Gorges of Lufthansa German Airlines in Hamburg, Germany; Brian Whitmer of award-winning Pacific Edge at Highlands Inn; and Count Matuschka of Schloss Vollrads in Germany, regarded as one of the premier German wine authorities in the world.

Special guests will include Christian Petrossian of Petrossian Caviar and Dr. Illy of Illy Caffe in Italy.

Also featured will be guest chef Nobu Matsuhisa whose namesake Beverly Hills sushi restaurant was named in the July 1990 edition of Mohey magazine as one of the top restaurants in the United States; and guest winemaker Chuck Wagner Jr. of Caymus Vineyards who also took top honors when Wine Spectator ranked the Caymus Vineyards Special Selection Cabernet Sauvignon the 1989 "Wine of the Year."

A culinary event that salutes great cuisine and wine as a common international language, the week-long Masters will offer participants diverse culinary programs ranging from luncheons and dinners jointly planned by chefs and winemakers to a cooking presentation by Bocuse, and cooking classes by Vongerichten and Brian Whitmer. Bocuse, who is courtesy of Champagne Mumm, will also autograph his most recent cookbook, Bon Appetit, during a special booksigning event.

Outside the resort, a tour and luncheon at Chalone Vineyard as well as a tour of Big Sur by horseback with catered beach picnic have been scheduled.

Other Masters of Food and Wine highlights include the opening night extravaganza with participating wineries and chefs, Petrossian Caviars, coffees from Illy Caffe of Italy and D'Artagnan foie gras; a tasting and discussion of Cabernet Sauvignons; and a Grand Finale Dinner encompassing the collaborative efforts of European and American chefs whose foods will be paired with exclusive and often rare wines.

Winemakers and winery principals confirmed to date are: Bernhard Breuer from Scholl and Hillebrand in Germany; Ridge Vineyards' Paul Draper; Dan and Margaret Duckhorn of Duckhorn Vineyards; Champagne Mumm; Spottswoode Vineyard and Winery's Beth and Mary Novak; Count Graf Matuschka of Schloss Vollrads, West Germany; Ed Selyem and Burt Williams of Williams-Selyem Winery; and Chuck Wagner, Jr. of Caymus.

Events during the Masters of Food and Wine are individually priced from $40 to $150.

Interns recruited by art museum

The Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art is now welcoming applications from local college art students who wish to apply for Seideneck Internships. Three one-year positions are open for 1991.

These internships are work experiences which complement academic training, providing the student with an introduction to a career in museum work. Under professional supervision by museum staff members, students may become involved in curatorship, conservation, resignation procedures, collection management, publicity techniques, exhibition design and installation, development, and volunteer and membership coordination. There will also be leeway for each student to pursue areas of his/her own interest.

These internships are funded by the George and Catherine Seideneck Scholarship Fund. The fund provides a monthly stipend of $100, and students are required to provide 24 hours per month of their time to the museum.

Students who wish to apply should send a resume and cover letter along with three letters of recommendation to: Seideneck Internships, Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, 559 Pacific Street, Monterey, CA 93940.

The deadline for applications is Nov. 16. Internships commence on January 1, 1991.

KACHINA DOLLS, handcrafted jewelry, paintings, rugs, baskets, and more will be available for purchase during the 12th semi-annual American Indian Expo and Sale. The event is set for Friday through Sunday, Nov. 9-11, at the Monterey Fairgrounds.

Robert Louis Stevenson's 'Unbirthday' party open to all

AN UNBIRTHDAY party that is a Monterey tradition returns Sunday, Nov. 11 to the Robert Louis Stevenson House in Monterey State Historic Park. Admission is free to this party, and visitors will have the opportunity to meet the noted author as portrayed by Keith Decker.

Refreshments will be served during the Unbirthday Party, set 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The Robert Louis Stevenson House, located on Houston Street in Monterey, was known as the French Hotel when the Scottish writer lived there in the autumn of 1879.

Why an Unbirthday Party? When in Samoa, in 1891, RLS donated his birthday, Nov. 13, to a young friend in Vermont, Annie H. Ide, the elder daughter of the American Land Commissioner in Samoa.

The girl felt cheated because her birthday fell on Christmas Day, so that she was "denied the consolation and profit of a proper birthday!" Hence the legal-sounding document penned by the writer, who had studied law in Edinburg, transferring his birthday's "rights and privileges" to Annie.

Complete text of the document is available at the Cooper Store. In addition to the open house on Sunday for the general public, school groups will visit Robert Louis Stevenson House on Monday, Nov. 13, and Thursday, Nov. 16, to join in the Unbirthday celebrations.

For more information contact the Old Monterey Preservation Society, the nonprofit association cooperating with Monterey State Historic Park, at 649-7111.

Native American artwork showcased during weekend sale

THE 12TH SEMI-ANNUAL American Indian Expo and Sale is set for Friday through Sunday, Nov. 9-11, in the Salinas Room of the Monterey Fairgrounds.

Show hours are 2 to 7 p.m. Friday; 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday, and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $4.75 for adults, $2 for children 12 and under. Admission is good for free returns during the entire show.

Native American artists and traders from throughout the United States join to provide a multi-million dollar selection of authentic articles, both contemporary and antique. Traditional foods will also be available and entertainment will be provided by Navajo dancers.

This is the 12th showing by the American Indian Traders' Guild at the Monterey fairgrounds. This November event is particularly appropriate as the United States Congress recently passed a landmark bill honoring the American Indian people and designating the month of November, 1990 as National American Indian Heritage Month.

The selection offered at this event includes handcrafted jewelry, rugs, baskets, kachina dolls, sand paintings, fine art, sculptures, and more.

Originals by Eleen Auvil, Virginia Conroy exhibited

IN FABULAND," a collection of bronze and mixed-media sculpture by Eleen Auvil, and "Queen of Diamonds Merry-Go-Round," etchings by Virginia Conroy are featured through Dec. 5 in the galleries of the Carmel Art Association. A reception for the artists is set 6 to 8 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 10 in the galleries located on Dolores Street between Fifth and Sixth Avenues in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Born in New York City, Virginia Conroy is a graduate of the Chouinard Art Institute, Los Angeles, and attended the San Francisco Art Institute. She is a life member of the Carmel Art Association in painting and graphics. Presently, she is an etching instructor at Sunset Center in Carmel.

The current exhibition titled, "Queen of Diamonds Merry-Go-Round" is a symbiotic theme for a series of etchings based on immigrant legends and family relationships.

The Carmel Art Association is also showing the latest exhibition of Eleen Auvil's bronze and mixed media sculpture.

Auvil's last exhibition, "The Existential Alice," appeared two years ago at the Carmel Art Association. Its "lovely departure from the ordinary" attracted compliments from those who attended.

In her current exhibition, "In Fabuland," Auvil continues the use of fantasy characters built around a theme. Many are larger than life and developed through the use of different media, resulting in a diverse appearance to her sculpture forms.

The Carmel Art Association is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

For additional information call 624-6176.

WE DANCE, a bronze sculpture by Eleen Auvil, is among her works featured through Dec. 4 in the galleries of the Carmel Art Association. A reception for Auvil and artist Virginia Conroy is set 6 to 8 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 10.

New Sunset Center director works to set goals

been kept busy just getting acquainted with these facilities and their regular users.

"I think when I came on, there were basically too few hands doing far too much, fueled by a great deal of dedication and good intention," he said. "I think if there is a weakness, it's that the entire cultural effort lacks unity and perhaps vision.

"You have a lot of these wonderful little gems going full bore at what they do best, and all these gems are in competition for the technical and funding support and need for performance and office facilities."

In an effort to resolve this dilemma, Donoghue and the cultural commissioners will meet for a one-day retreat on Dec. 1.

"We'll be tackling programming and funding, capitol improvement; everything from immediate scheduling to long-term planning," he said.

The purpose of the retreat will also be to "define the artistic mission of the center, its role in the community. We will not be solving everything, but we'll come up with a game plan and a structure."

Looking to his experience as a programmer, Donoghue said he looks forward to presenting a season of productions "to be enjoyed by all people on the Monterey Peninsula, a breath of fresh air in the arts, things new and exciting."

The father of a teenage son, Donoghue served as a monitor in last week's Halloween parade through downtown Carmel.

"I was extremely encouraged when I saw those hundreds of kids," he said. "People keep telling me this is not a community of children, yet all day here I see kids coming and going for Gymboree. So we will be starting a children's performance series in Sunset Theater."

Another of Donoghue's concerns is "capturing the imagination. How do you motivate people who won't take the energy to check it out? One of the ways is I'm enlisting people left and right. Maybe we can have a very strong, organized group, an arts brigade," he maintained.

"Now there are a couple handfuls of people who help. We would really like to get some executive volunteer support, not only because we need the help, but because it's a healthy way to spend your life. There has to be people in this community who have the expertise and can put something back into Carmel."

Juggling budgeting, booking, a wealth of performance and artistic groups, it almost seems natural if the new community and cultural center director feels a tad overwhelmed.

Donoghue laughs upon recalling, "The mayor called me the other day and said, 'Rome wasn't built in a day.' And then she claimed authorship for that statement."

Back, better than ever

SISTER DEOLA Booker, a protegee of Mahalia Jackson, will bring gospel music to Hidden Valley Theater on Friday, Nov. 9. Sister Deola recorded The Dreamer in honor of Martin Luther King in 1985. For Friday's

Cottage Gallery shows paintings by American impressionist

NEW ENGLAND artist John C. Terelak will be in Carmel on Saturday, Nov. 10 for a reception in his honor at Cottage Gallery. Terelak, a past president of the New England Watercolor Society, is best known for his richly textured oil paintings depicting scenes from New England as well as travels abroad.

Terelak says, "I've been painting for over 25 years and after all that time I still love to paint. I get enormous pleasure just from the smell of paint and turpentine, from the actual physical process of mixing paints and applying them to the canvas. I'm a very intense painter, and I'm certainly a 'messy' painter, but at the same time I'm also very patient and painstaking. I take a long time with my paintings, working and reworking them, adding layer after layer of paint, and glazing the surface again and again. I want the actual surface of the canvas to have a rich patina, a depth and texture which is beautiful in its own right, quite independent of the images and colors involved.

Actually, whether I'm painting Monet's garden at three in the afternoon, or Times Square at three in the morning, the real content of my work is color and light. What I'm really doing is playing off one color against another, creating color harmonies that evoke different moods and feelings. I've been called an American traditionalist and impressionist, but those are just labels. In fact, the only thing that really matters is the work itself, and the feelings the work produces."

As a former headmaster of the Gloucester Academy of Fine Art, Terelak has influenced many of America's professional artists. His paintings hang in numerous private and public collections.

The reception for Terelak will be from 5 to 8 p.m. on Saturday. For further information call Cottage Gallery at 624-7888.

MUSIC CORNER

By Nathalie Plotkin

Bay Chamber Orchestra proves its alive and well

THE MONTEREY BAY Chamber Orchestra, the fifth and last concert association to weigh in on the local music scene this season, showed on Sunday afternoon that they are alive and quite well under the direction of their conductor Michael Nowak. The program ran through the gamut of styles, incorporating selections spanning three centuries and with widely varied musical values.

Georg Philipp Telemann led off. His volumes of "Tafelmusik" were composed as dinner and entertainment music, suited to convivial gatherings. The music showed craftsmanship and was very imaginative. In his time, he far outshone his contemporary J.S. Bach in popularity. His works were light, bright and diverting.

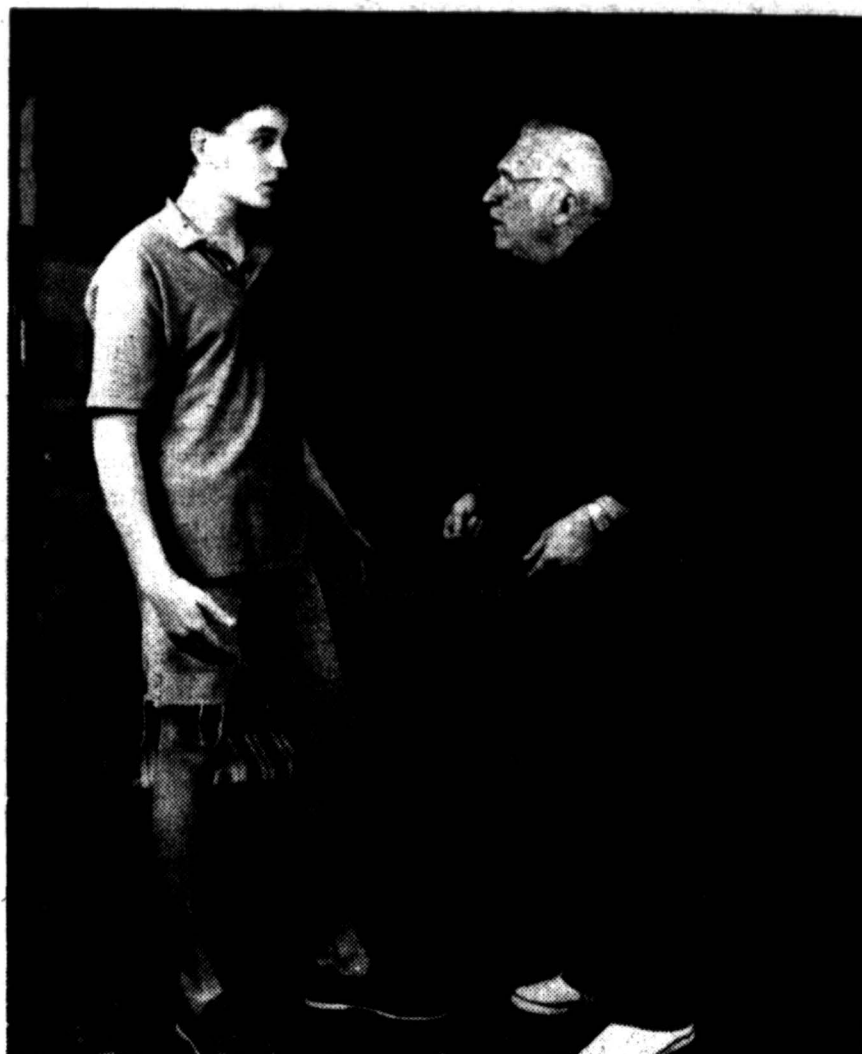

The "Suite in B Flat Major" from the third volume, consists of an overture and a series of dances scored for string orchestra and two oboes. Nowak emphasized the rhythmic aspect of the pieces, causing his musicians to play with clarity and disciplined accents. The orchestra sounded subdued and inhibited, though the many solo passages played by violinists David Dally and Jim Potochny helped by adding much needed verve and dynamic excitement. Oboists David Seeley and Donna Forster contributed sparkling tonal color and contrast to the proceedings as well.

All this made the next item, Ravel's "Mother Goose Suite" seem quite exotic and multi-hued by comparison. Scored for full symphonic complement and including an extensive percussion section, plus celesta and harp, it was a real tonal treat. Ravel was a master orchestrator and the instrumental flavors he concocted were most intriguing to the ear. Also, it helped that the performance was skillful and polished. The "Pavane of the Sleeping Beauty" had a wistful charm and a lovely tonal aura. "Tom Thumb" was Ravel's version of "Forest Murmurs," complete with realistically chirping birds. The "Empress of the Pagodas" featured woodwinds and percussion in finely drawn Oriental effects and the playing was expert. "Beauty and the Beast" was a waltz, full of grace and sensitivity and the last selection which was the "Awakening of the Sleeping Beauty" brought the work to a bright-sounding conclusion.

Violinist Bruce Dukov was the soloist in the Mendelssohn "Violin Concerto in E Minor" op. 64. One of the most popular works in the violin repertoire (and justly so), its lyric romanticism is best expressed with tasteful refinement and certainly this is the treatment it was awarded. Dukov's tone is lovely and rounded, but not at all overbearing, though sometimes this worked to his detriment. In fact, when he was engaged in the difficult and extensive technical passagework which he so ably encompassed, one had to strain to hear him through the orchestra. There should have been more projection or less orchestra, but in any case, the soloist should not have to strain to be heard. The solo part is paramount in this concerto.

The interpretation of the slow movement was exactly as it should be. Dukov's refined tone was well proportioned and tasteful and Nowak and the orchestra collaborated more sensitively here. In the third movement the balance slipped again and the soloist's well schooled, gracefully fleet playing was not always given the background support it merited. Accompanying a soloist is a challenge for an orchestra and it is a skill that one hopes will develop in the course of the season.

I particularly liked the programming which departed from the usual course. By putting the concerto last, the audience was given a climax to look forward to.

Can't hurt

WYNTON MARSALIS and his trumpet decorated the cover of Time magazine (10/22), which thus declared The New Jazz Age. Such attention means (behind the scenes and hype) that some younger players got the corporate nod. Commercial viability. As the hungry wanderer said about a sudden sandwich: "Can't hurt."

The accompanying copy celebrated neotraditional acoustic jazz and named Wynton its chief prophet. Well, he can play, speaks and dresses very well, eventually may develop an individual voice and story of lasting worth. At the least he'll focus public interest while people like Donald Harrison and Jane Ira Bloom and Courtney Pine do serious searching.

One wire from New York today says certain jazz instrumentalists there and in London found the magic doorway unto an entirely new harmonic structure. So far they have the handle but not the theoretical statement that would allow clear communication of their discoveries. Look for these New Pioneers to emerge throughout the '90s.

"It's not free-form jazz or some other tired approach," our informant reports. "They're achieving the next step and they know the end result must sound good too. A little bit of it may be heard in Jane Ira's recorded work. Eventually, their finds will make everyone hit the woodshed — just as Bird Parker brought on a whole new ballgame in the '40s."

THE LATEST SERIES put together by Hidden Valley Music Seminars looks most promising. On Friday evening (11/9) — gospel sounds by Sister Deola Booker plus band and support singers. She's described as a protege of Mahalia Jackson. Starts at eight o'clock. Ducats ($10 per) at the door or through Center Stage Ticketing.

Other bookings: Ali Ryerson on flute and pianist Charles Loos (11/16), harp recital by Jung Kwak of Korea (11/23), truly brilliant jazz pianist Dave McKenna (11/30), multi-media experience with photographer and philosopher William Giles (12/7), dance concert featuring Brazilian and Afro-Cuban arrangements of the seven-member group called Tocara (12/14), Christmas concert by a vocal quartet (12/21). Hosting the latter will be Randall Behr, resident conductor for Los Angeles Music Center Opera.

Hidden Valley honcho Peter Meckel's getting good help this time from series coordinator Richard Armbrust. Info: 659-3115.

"A dessert bar with various non-alcoholic beverages will be open each evening," Peter informs. "Persons wishing to bring their own wine may do so."

A LOCAL JAZZ composer of real worth — pianist Biff Smith. Biff was on the gig some nights ago at Monterey Beach Hotel with drummer Bill LePine and reedman John Cortes. Bill and Cortes anchor the unit; bass and keyboard slots get filled by various players — and the experiment seems quite creative and fortunate.

Biff originals included the pure bebop tune entitled Baptism (a play on Bird's Confirmation romp). For this outing, Smith achieved the bell-clear voicings of Parker pianist Duke Jordan. And the ballad If It's You demonstrated Biff's frankly romantic side.

He, of course, works with Monterey Peninsula Jazz Orchestra at Mission Ranch Barn on Monday nights. "I've been arranging some of my things for singers. This vocal approach means, for me, a whole new way of scoring. I've got two full-time jobs (family man and English teacher at Robert Louis Stevenson School) — so I find myself writing at one or two o'clock in the morning. I'm happy with what's happening on paper."

The group also plays older tunes that deserve attention — Miles Davis, Brubeck, Ellington, Harold Arlen, Rodgers and Hart. Wednesday through Saturday nights. It's fascinating to hear Cortes share his voice — an intelligent mix of Arthur Blythe, Booker Ervin, Jeep Hodges, and the man's own relationship with that Jazz Muse. Maturity. The long road's reward.

PATRICK FRANKLIN wrote in one last column for the daily newspaper that he'll review concerts no more. Patrick was that rarity — a brilliant observer and good writer who's courage-packed and a nice person as well. His keen presence will be missed.

And let's not forget Angie Machado. The longtime music teacher at Carmel High and Monterey Peninsula College passed away recently. Her great heat simply quit. Age 86. She also served Carmel Bach Festival for many years as assistant choral director.

SIGHT BITES: Spike Lee's Mo' Better Blues drew down a Golden Pit Award for ethnic insults. The jazz film presented two Jewish clubowner brothers as sleazy, venal, cynical. The non-prize was announced by business magnate William Fugazy, honorary chairman for the National Ethnic Coalition of Organizations.

Monterey Peninsula College's Don Schamber says his 22-piece jazz orchestra will offer a free public concert in the campus Music Hall early next month (12/9). Sharing the bill: North Monterey County High School Big Band under teacher D.L. Johnson's direction.

Sheraton's Monterey Bay Club: Smith Dobson Septet (11/8), Kevin Feeney (11/9-10), Alan Berman (11/11), Monday Night Football (11/12), unannounced (11/13), Don Pendergrass (11/14).

Kuumbwa Jazz Center of Santa Cruz: Billy Childs (11/12), Laszlo Gordony Trio plus Hugh Fraser Quintet (11/19), Hugh Masakela (11/26), Andy Narell (12/3), Kenny Barron Quintet (12/10). Center Stage Ticketing.

Local vibist Bill Jackson will lead his group into Giovanni's of Concord on Saturday night (11/10). This is the jazz series assembled by producer Tup Lohse.

Bay Area Music Awards has formed a nonprofit foundation to distribute profits from the annual Bammies show in San Francisco. Columnists there have been asking the question for a couple of years now — what happens with all that cash out of the community?

Scarecrow Press of New Jersey has issued a new catalogue of its jazz books. Call 1-800-537-7107. Included: The Benny Carter biography and comprehensive discography on Art Tatum.

Long runs — Ace Hill duo at Doubletree Lounge, bright jam sessions hosted by bassist Norm Ross for The Firehouse (Thursday and Saturday nights), Monica Harle Trio (Highlands Inn), Sunday afternoon trad sets at Moss Landing Inn, Brazilian percussionist Helcio Mito and pianist Weber Drummond (Spanish Bay Lobby Lounge). Bill Allison and jazz pals play Pablo's in The Barnyard on Wednesday nights. Cancun in The Crossroads still has Holehouse Blues Bank (usually at midweek — call ahead).

Knockout vocalist Patty Peterson's going into the studio to record a new album. The Minneapolis pro's family rather dominates the jazz scene there.

Glenn Dicterow solos with Monterey County Symphony

NEW YORK Philharmonic Concertmaster Glenn Dicterow joins the Monterey County Symphony for three performances set Sunday through Tuesday, Nov. 11-13. Clark Suttle will conduct the concert trio which will feature performances of American composer Samuel Barber's "Concerto for Violin," Serge Prokofiev's "Lieutenant Kije Suite" and Felix Mendelssohn's Symphony No. 3 in A minor ("Scotch").

Performances are set at 3 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 11 in King Hall at the Navel Postgraduate School, Monterey; 8 p.m. Monday, Nov. 12 in Sunset Theater, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel; and 8 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 13 in Sherwood Hall, 940 N. Main St., Salinas.

When Glenn Dicterow played the Barber "Concerto for Violin" with the Montreal Symphony, the Montreal Gazette described his performance as one of "style, feeling" with "an evenly placed vibrato and a superb instinct for intonation." This concerto, composed in the 1930s, is in the familiar style of Barber's "Adagio for Strings." (The "Adagio" was featured in the movie Platoon.)

Dicterow, a frequent soloist at leading orchestras across the county, has been hailed as a

"beautifully gifted performer in all respects" by the San Francisco Chronicle. He made his debut with the Los Angeles Philharmonic at the age of 12, and made his New York Philharmonic solo debut at age 18 playing the Tchaikovsky Concerto. He joined the Los Angeles Philharmonic as associate concertmaster and served in that capacity until the end of the 1978-79 season. In 1980, Dicterow became concertmaster of the New York Philharmonic, where he has remained to the present.

Now in its 45th Season, the Monterey County Symphony is the fully professional orchestra serving all of Monterey County. Since 1985, Clark Suttle, its music director and conductor, has assembled the region's musicians to perform major works of the symphonic repertoire as well as new and lesser-known compositions in a six-program subscription series.

Prior to joining the Monterey County Symphony, Suttle was associate conductor of the Phoenix Symphony and Buffalo Philharmonic. He has guest conducted the orchestra of Saint Louis, Denver, Savannah, Grand Rapids and Fresno.

On Oct. 30, Suttle will make his conducting debut in Copenhagen, Denmark with the Sjælland Orkestra.

Cetacean art

PETER BISHOP Allen's Harbor Seal is included in "Whales in Art," an exhibition featured at the Monterey Conference Center in conjunction with the American Cetacean Society's Fourth Biennial Conference. The collection can be viewed Thursday through Sunday, Nov. 8-11.

Host families sought for exchange students

Host families are being sought for high school exchange students from Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Finland, Holland, Austria, Switzerland, Germany, Spain, France, Italy, Brazil, Ecuador, Yugoslavia, Japan, Thailand and Australia for the school year 1990-91 in a program sponsored by the American Intercultural Student Exchange (AISE).

The students, age 15 through 17, will arrive in the United States, attend a local high school, and return to their home countries in June, 1991. The students, all fluent in English, have been screened by their school representatives in their home countries and have spending money and medical insurance.

Play It Again, Sam

Woody Allen's comedy, Play It Again, Sam, previews Thursday and Friday, Nov. 8-9, at the GroveMont Theater Arts Center. The formal opening, with wine and refreshments, will take place 8 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 10.

Play It Again, Sam follows the trials and tribulations of Allan Felix (Michael Jacobs), as his friends attempt to "fix him up" with a variety of beautiful dates, with disastrous results. Throughout these blind dates, Allan is coached by none other than his movie hero, Humphrey Bogart (Kerry Hartjen). The cast also features Nita Raichart, James Brady, Gina Ferrari, Denise Clifford, Elizabeth Klass, Gretchen Greaves, Maryann Schaupp and Lorraine Crawford.

Jim Webber directs Play It Again, Sam. The production continues at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and at 7 p.m. Sundays until Dec. 15. One Sunday matinee has been scheduled for 2 p.m. on Nov. 25.

Tickets on Thursdays and Sundays are $8.50 general and $7 for students, seniors and military. Ticket prices on Fridays and Saturdays are $9.50 general and $8 for students, seniors and military. Advance tickets may be purchased through Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561. For reservations, call the GroveMont Theater at 649-6852. GroveMont is at 320 Hoffman (at Lighthouse) in New Monterey.

On Golden Pond

Ernest Thompson's drama, On Golden Pond, is the first production of The Forest Theater Guild to be staged in Carmel's Cherry Hall.

Gregory de Silva directs On Golden Pond. The cast features Jim Jensen as Norman Thayer, Nancy M. Neuman as his daughter, Chelsea, and Ramona Davis as Ethel Thayer.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and 2 p.m. Sundays until Dec. 7. Cherry Hall is at Guadalupe and Fourth in Carmel-by-the-Sea. Reservations are required. For tickets or further information, call 626-1681.

The Dickens Players

The Dickens Players will perform comic and dramatic scenes from the novels and short stories of Charles Dickens at the Santa Catalina School Performing Arts Center. The free program begins at 1:15 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 15.

The players are sponsored by the Dickens Project, a research group based at the University of California-Santa Cruz. The performances integrate Victorian music, characterization and plot, emphasizing Dickens' masterful language.

This performance is a program in The Edwin L. Wiegand Dialogues in the Arts and Sciences at Santa Catalina School.

For further information, call 655-9341.

At the Hop

The 165-seat Wharf Theatre, located on Monterey's historic Fisherman's Wharf, has turned into a venue of sound and movement as the clock is turned back to America's tail-finned past.

Advice for the love-lorn

DICK (James Brady, left) offers solace and advice to Alan (Michael Jacobs), who suffers relationship problems in Woody Allen's comedy, Play It Again, Sam. The production formally opens Saturday, Nov. 10 at the GroveMont Theater Arts Center.

At the Hop is directed and choreographed by Laura Akard and produced by Michael J. James.

From Do-Wop to Motown, the show's themed sections find sweethearts found and lost and eras revisited.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Sundays until Nov. 18. Tickets are available through Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561, or at the door.

The Outer Zone

The Big Sur Players have chosen for their next venture four one-act plays for a trip into The Outer Zone.

The evening's drama will be offered up by "Wildman" and will include works of Woody Allen and John Patrick Shanley.

Already staged at the Big Sur Grange Hall, The Outer Zone returns as a dinner-theater event. Dinner will be served at 7 p.m. at the Big Sur River Inn. The Outer Zone follows at 8:30 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 8.

Included in the cast are Big Sur residents Kim Candler, Jeffrey Downs, Lee Ergovich, Jim Fuller, Jennifer Green, Mark Marron, J. Perham Slate and Lisa Worthey.

The plays are directed by Kim Candler, J. Perham Slate and Jeremy Slate.

For more information, call 373-7713 or 625-4211.

Wuthering Heights

The Staff Players Repertory Company opens its 1990-91 season with an original adaptation of Emily Bronte's Wuthering Heights. This turbulent and violent tale of love and implacable hatred has fascinated readers for more than 150 years.

Wuthering Heights plays through Nov. 17 at the Indoor Forest Theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita, in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays. In addition, a

Mystery writers share some secrets at Thunderbird

Four mystery writers will talk about their work, how to develop an idea and write a mystery book, during a book-signing reception set 10:30 a.m. to noon Wednesday, Nov. 14 at the Thunderbird Bookshop. Admission is free.

Mystery lovers and aspiring writers are invited to meet the following "Sisters in Crime:"

— Diane Mott Davidson's Catering To Nobody includes interesting culinary lore (including recipes) to round out an intricate plot of murder and dark secrets. Davidson will offer a sampling of Dungeon Bars from "Goldy's Kitchen." Goldy is a main character and suspect in the plot.

— Carolyn Hart, author of seven mysteries, won an Agatha and an Anthony award for Something Wicked. A little Class on Murder won the Macavity award — presented by Mystery Readers' Journal. Her most recent book Deadly Valentine has received praise by numerous reviewers.

— Joan Hess is a prolific mystery writer whose novel, A Diet To Die For received the Best Traditional Mystery award from Mystery Scene magazine.

— Doris Meredith is also an award-winning author of numerous mysteries including Murder By Impulse and Detective Book Club selections The Sheriff and the Panhandle Murders and The Sheriff and the Branding Iron Murders. She will be signing her new book, Murder By Masquerade.

Desmond Morris signs his newest book

Best-selling author Desmond Morris, who has written The Naked Ape and a series of observations of animal behavior, will be at the Monterey Bay Aquarium on Sunday, Nov. 11 from noon to 2 p.m. to sign his newest book, Animalwatching.

The signing will take place in the aquarium auditorium. It is open to all aquarium visitors.

Morris, a zoologist and artist, has written Catwatching, Dogwatching, Catlore, and Horsewatching, in addition to his other works. Animalwatching, illustrated with 500 full-color photographs, details his findings about the oddities of animal behavior.

A researcher in the zoology department at Oxford University, he also exhibits his paintings internationally and participates in television programs about animal behavior.

Animalwatching is available at the aquarium gift and bookstore. For more information about the signing, call 648-4848.

Desmond Morris, zoologist, artist and best-selling author, will sign his newest book, Animalwatching, on Sunday, Nov. 11 at the Monterey Bay Aquarium.

DIANE DAVIDSON, sister in crime, will discuss mystery writing at the Thunderbird Bookshop on Nov. 14 from 10:30 a.m. to noon.

Learn how to become a 'Big Buddy'

evening, Dec. 18, saw the news and was astounded at what we had done. In the next few days, a lot of media stress was placed on interviewing Panamanians who supported the invasion.

"I felt I had to go myself and see for myself what had occurred. It just seemed so unjust. It seemed to me an example of a powerful country just making some excuse. They sent 24,000 troops to capture one man. None of it seemed to add up," she stated.

'When I get behind the camera I feel a need to get involved, to act. I am not just satisfied to document the situation.'

— Eileen O'Leary

Once in Panama, O'Leary discovered that the Panamanians detained in refugee camps were kept isolated from the rest of the populace. She befriended a psychology student from Panama University who acted as her translator.

"At the end of the trip, she told me, 'Thank you for showing me Panama,' " the photographer recalled.

"When I arrived, most of the civilian people had not been allowed out on the streets. I was stunned. I had never seen such devastation," she added.

As an independent journalist, O'Leary discovered advantages to not being part of an official press pool.

"The role of the press is to be distanced from the system. I think the Bush administration very cleverly manipulated the press in Panama. When I got there, there weren't any other photographers out and about, which gave me a tremendous freedom that the press pool didn't have."

O'Leary discovered burned-out neighborhoods, hundreds of refugee families living in 10-foot-square partitioned quarters inside an airplane hangar, and a populace that remained generally warm and welcoming, despite their hardship.

"The Panamanian people are incredibly warm and wonderful. They were happy to have their feelings recorded," she observed. "There are estimated to be 14 mass graves in Panama. People there are still waiting to hear what happened to their families."

According to O'Leary, "When I get behind the camera I feel a need to get involved, to act. I am not just satisfied to document the situation."

She regards a photograph as a "powerful affector of change." She has also directed her lenses on the homeless in San Francisco as well as AIDS patients there.

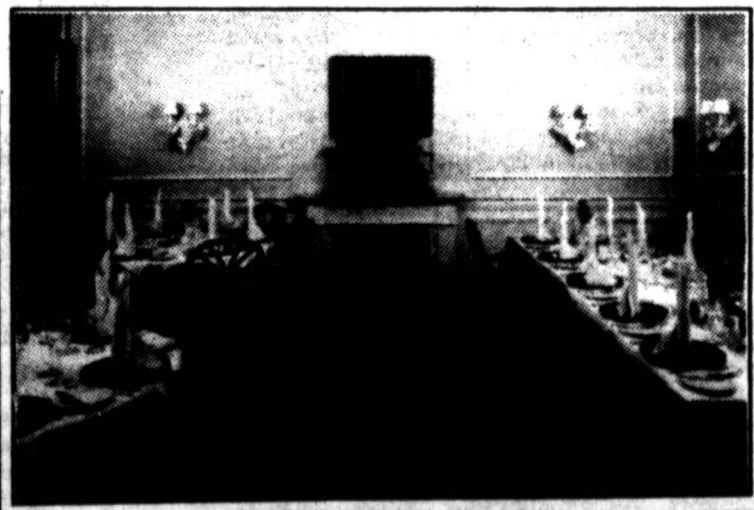

"What I want to do with my photographs is try to make social change," she asserted.

"Panama: A Just Cause?" is teamed with images by Richard Newman of the 1989 Exxon Valdez oil spill on Prince William Sound, Alaska. Admission is free to the Photographic Center of the Monterey Peninsula, housed in Sunset Center, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel. Gallery hours are 1 to 5 p.m. daily. For additional information, call 625-5181.

Tomatoes, a member of the poisonous nightshade family, are quite a new food for man. A hundred years ago they were not much used. Today, tomatoes are third in rank among vege-

HOW THIS RAKE CAN SAVE YOUR LIFE.

This simple garden tool is a firefighter. It can help you clear away brush and leaves that act like kindling around your home.
And you.

So if you live near the forest, do a little raking. And that's not all. Landscape your home with a fire retardant plant like ivy. Use spark arrester screens on your chimney and vents. And put fire retardant material on your roof and underneath your house.

where it is exposed.
Because a forest fire burns more than trees.

Remember.
Only you can prevent forest fires.

the USDA, Forest Service and your State Forester.

the grain.

One Person Can Make a Difference

In search of a solution to your real estate needs—LOOKING to buy or sell—consider the experience of Watson Realty! Watson has been helping Monterey Peninsula clients find clues, in completing a sale or purchase, for nearly 15 years.

In assisting sellers, Watson investigates the important property facts and presents that evidence to targeted buyers. For a buyer, Watson delves into the past of suspect properties of interest to the buyer; and checks his sources to uncover the sellers needs. In brief, Watson uses all the tools of the trade, including a healthy, happy relationship with other Realtors, in pursuit of clients' needs.

Watson Realty believes that one person can make a difference, especially if he has his client's best interests in view! Look closely, and let Watson help you... Sherlock would be pleased!
